Processing Mark Johnson, Sanjeev P. Khudanpur, Mari Ostendorf, Roni Rosenfeld, 2012-12-06 Speech and language technologies continue to grow in importance as they are used to create natural and efficient interfaces between people and machines and to automatically transcribe extract analyze and route information from high volume streams of spoken and written information The workshops on Mathematical Foundations of Speech Processing and Natural Language Modeling were held in the Fall of 2000 at the University of Minnesota's NSF sponsored Institute for Mathematics and Its Applications as part of a Mathematics in Multimedia year long program Each workshop brought together researchers in the respective technologies on the one hand and mathematicians and statisticians on the other hand for an intensive week of cross fertilization There is a long history of benefit from introducing mathematical techniques and ideas to speech and language technologies Examples include the source channel paradigm hidden Markov models decision trees exponential models and formal languages theory It is likely that new mathematical techniques or novel applications of existing techniques will once again prove pivotal for moving the field forward This volume consists of original contributions presented by participants during the two workshops Topics include language modeling prosody acoustic phonetic modeling and statistical methodology

Challenges of the Information Society Zygmunt Vetulani,Hans Uszkoreit,2009-09-07 Half a centuryago not many people had realized that a new epoch in the history of homo sapiens had just started The term Information Society Age seems an appropriate name for this epoch Communication was without a doubt a lever of the conquest of the human race over the rest of the animate world There is little doubt that the human race began when our predecessors started to communicate with each other using language This highly abstract means of communication was probably one of the major factors contributing to the evolutionary success of the human race within the animal world Physically weak and imperfect humans started to dominate the rest of the world through the creation of communication based societies where individuals communicated initially to satisfy immediate needs and then to create accumulate and process knowledge for future use The crucial step in the history of humanity was the invention of writing It is worth noting that writing is a human invention not a phenomenon resulting from natural evolution Humans invented writing as a technique for recording speech as well as for storing and facilitating the dissemination of knowledge across the world

Humans continue to be born illiterate and therefore teaching and conscious supervised learning is necessary to maintain this basic social skill Computational Processing of the Portuguese Language Nuno J.
