this time of turmoil and tragedy With these ideas in mind the American Educational History Journal sought to hear from historians and other scholars about this unique and devastating time in our country s history The Journal honors the traditions of oral history and narrative storytelling as a means to gather the voices of those whose lives have been touched by the COVID 19 crisis literally everyone around the globe This special issue deviates a bit from traditional AEHJ requirements in that we specifically invited narratives not be full blown historical research studies The point of this special issue is for authors themselves to serve as the archival material that will benefit future scholars interested in understanding what it meant to live through this health catastrophe while doing the work of educators We believe we owe it to the historians of the future to share our voices in real time

Crossing the Digital Divide Barbara Jean Monroe, 2004-04-17 As poor nonwhite communities on the other side of the digital divide become immersed in electronic media how can we evaluate their experiences to transform the teaching of writing and literature and improve student learning This important book offers a balanced view of instructional technology and critical multiculturalism with valuable insights to help English educators at all levels working in all types of schools
