

Contradictions in national communication/information policies: the Canadian experience

Robin E. Mansell

WILLIAM H. MELODY & ASSOCIATES

Introduction

The conceptualization and implementation of national policy in the communication/information sector becomes increasingly important with each advance towards an integrated international information network. Nations have sought to elaborate policies that will protect and extend possibilities for sovereign economic, political and cultural development. The specific characteristics of self-reliant or autonomous models for development vis-à-vis the information sector vary significantly. But key components include protection from the incursion of foreign transnational corporations (TNCs) and promotion of indigenous hardware and software production capability. The critique of this model offered here focuses on the complexity and contradictions in the process of national policy implementation.¹

The literature addressed to the potential created by information technologies for self-reliant, autonomous or sovereign development has located and exposed a significant barrier to effective national policy implementation. Analysis has revealed that TNCs located in 'centre' nations including the US, Japan and Western Europe, which promote the benefits of the information revolution, attempt to homogenize and integrate the global economic and cultural community to increase sales and profit. The message promoted by the TNCs, offering information technology as the key to advance-

Discrimination and Denial Clayton James Mosher, 1998-01-01 Champion sprinter Donovan Bailey said it and this book confirms it While racism may not be as blatant in Canada as in the United States it does exist Members of visible minority groups are discriminated against in employment housing and access to public services The increasing visibility of hate groups and calls to restrict immigration mark the growing tension. Racist attitudes against Asians and Blacks in particular have seeped into the criminal justice system. Ironically since 1960 it has been illegal in Ontario to track crime by race making it difficult for researchers to collect data. The media our primary source of information has sensationalized crimes where minority groups are implicated. Clayton Mosher uses historical data and media reports to expose racism in Canada's social, legal and criminal justice systems. He considers the social contexts of discrimination legislation directed against minority groups, law enforcement and court outcomes. At last we are offered an objective assessment of racism in Canada. Discrimination and Denial is essential reading for judges, lawyers, police officers, social policy makers and community leaders. Interpretations of recent events such as the shooting of officer Todd Baylis by a fugitive alien and gang style slayings in Toronto's Chinatown are guaranteed to heat up the embers of public debate. Constructions of Race, Place, and Nation Peter Jackson, Jan Penrose, 1994. Indian Diaspora, 2008-01-01 Indian Diaspora Social Gerontology Nursing Multiculturalism Education. In historic and ethnographic accounts of Indians living in diaspora the elderly seem to receive much less attention than the new generation and its progress, prosperity and success. Using critical pedagogy approach this book attempts to close that gap by focusing on the voices of the Punjabi, Bengali, Sindhi and Gujarati diasporic Indians elderly living in five countries. Learning to listen to the voices of these seniors may enable professors, teachers, students, policy makers and parents to work towards building democratic societies. ReThinking Disability René Gadacz, 1994. This volume provides case studies of the contemporary independent living disabled consumer movement from the perspective of New Social Movement theory. It describes the organizational strategies by which disabled people pursue the goal of integrated community living and focuses on the work of several movement organizations. Inequality in Canada Valerie Sarah-Elizabeth Zawilski, Valerie Zawilski, Cynthia Levine-Rasky, 2005. This collection of published Canadian articles about inequality in Canada looks at how inequality is shaped by the intersections of gender, race and class. Cis Dideen Kat Jo-Anne Fiske, Betty Patrick, 2000. Winner of the 2013 Washington State Book Award in Poetry. This book examines the Lake Babine Nation in north central British Columbia considering its traditional legal order and the way that order determines the people's identity and the nature of their involvement in current treaty negotiations. Changing relations between the Natives and the Canadian state have resulted in a new awareness of customary legal orders. While such orders are often seen as a process by which the state can accommodate diverse approaches to judicial fairness and social justice they also offer the means by which aboriginal nations can maintain their identity by sustaining a moral order in a viable self defined and self governed community. For the Lake Babine Nation this moral order is defined by and lived through the feasting complex known as the bahlats or potlatch system. Emotions Matter Alan Hunt, Kevin Walby, Dale Spencer, 2012-01-01. The chapters comprising this edited volume originate from a workshop organized at Carleton University in May of 2009. Introductory First Nations Vic Satzewich, Terry Wotherspoon, 2000. First published in 1993. First Nations Race, Class and Gender

Relations remains unique in offering systematically from a political economy perspective an analysis that enables us to understand the diverse realities of Aboriginal people within changing Canadian and global contexts The book provides an extended analysis of how changing social dynamics organized particularly around race class and gender relations have shaped the life chances and conditions for Aboriginal people within the structure of Canadian society and its major institutional forms The authors conclude that prospects for First Nations and Aboriginal people remain uncertain insofar as they are grounded in contradictory social economic and cultural and political realities
