Social Acceleration A New Theory Of Modernity:

Social Acceleration Hartmut Rosa, 2013-05-14 Hartmut Rosa advances an account of the temporal structure of society from the perspective of critical theory. He identifies in particular three categories of change in the tempo of modern social life: technological acceleration evident in transportation, communication and production; the acceleration of social change reflected in cultural knowledge, social institutions and personal relationships; and acceleration in the pace of life which happens despite the expectation that technological change should increase an individual's free time. According to Rosa, both the structural and cultural aspects of our institutions and practices are marked by the shrinking of the present, a decreasing time period during which expectations based on past experience reliably match future results and events. When this phenomenon combines with technological acceleration and the increasing pace of life, time seems to flow ever faster, making our relationships to each other and the world fluid and problematic. It is as if we are standing on slipping slopes, a steep social terrain that is itself in motion and in turn demands faster lives and technology. As Rosa deftly shows, this self-reinforcing feedback loop fundamentally determines the character of modern life. Alienation and Acceleration Hartmut

Rosa, 2026-05-26 Modern life is speeding up constantly. While the art of saving time reaches unprecedented heights through the introduction of ever new technologies of communication and production, it nevertheless feels like we are running out of time. In all western societies, time scarcity is increasing and individuals report the impression of having to run faster and faster every year, not in order to get somewhere but just to stay where they are. In this short book, Hartmut Rosa outlines his theory of social acceleration and uses it to analyse the causes and consequences of the temporal processes that characterize modern societies. He shows that modern temporal structures are governed by the logic of an acceleration process that defines the essence of modernity. He also develops a critical theory of social acceleration, arguing that acceleration leads to severe forms of alienation from time and space, from things and actions, and from self and others, thus constituting a key obstacle to the realization of a good life in late modern society. But what does the phenomenon of social acceleration really entail and how new is it While much has been written about our high speed society in the popular media serious academic analysis has lagged behind and what literature there is comes more from Europe than from America This collection of essays is a first step toward exposing readers on this side of the Atlantic to the importance of this phenomenon and toward developing some preliminary conceptual categories for better understanding it Among the major questions the volume addresses are these Is acceleration occurring across all sectors of society and all dimensions of life or is it affecting some more than others Where is life not speeding up and what results from this disparity What are the fundamental causes of acceleration as well as its consequences for everyday experience How does it affect our political and legal institutions How much speed can we tolerate The volume tackles these questions in three sections Part 1 offers a selection of astute early analyses of acceleration as experienced in the late nineteenth and early twentieth centuries Part 2 samples recent attempts at analyzing social acceleration including translations of the work of leading European thinkers Part 3 explores acceleration's political implications predicting the next turn of transformation in the MENA countries after the 2011 Uprisings Arab activists did not articulate explicitly any modalities of their desired system although their slogans ushered to a fully democratic society These unguided Uprisings showcase an open ended freedom to question after Arabs underwent their freedom from struggle from authoritarianism The new conflicts in Egypt Syria Yemen and Libya have fragmented shari'a legitimacy into distinct conceptualizations revolutionary legitimacy electoral legitimacy legitimacy of the street and consensual legitimacy This volume examines whether the Uprisings would introduce a replica of the European Enlightenment or rather stimulate an Arab Islamic awakening with its own cultural specificity and political philosophy By placing Immanuel Kant in Tahrir Square this book adopts a comparative analysis of two enlightenment projects one Arab still under construction with possible progression toward modernity or regression toward neo authoritarianism and one European shaped by the past two centuries

Mohammed D Cherkaoui and the contributing authors use a hybrid theoretical framework drawing on three tanwiri enlightenment philosophers from different eras Ibn Rushd known in the west as Averroes the twelfth century Immanuel Kant the eighteenth century and Mohamed Abed Al Jabri the twentieth century The authors propose a few projections about the outcome of the competition between an Islamocracy vision and what Cherkaoui terms as a Demoslamic vision since it implies the Islamist movements flexibility to reconcile their religious absolutism with the prerequisites of liberal democracy This book also traces the patterns of change which point to a possible Arab Axial Age It ends with the trials of modernity and tradition in Tunisia and an imaginary speech Kant would deliver at the Tunisian Parliament after those vibrant debates of the new constitution in 2014 Colonial Temporality and Writing Education Xiaoye You, Othman Z. The Cosmopolitan Constitution Alexander Somek,2014 Originally the constitution was expected to express and channel popular sovereignty It was the work of freedom springing from and facilitating collective self determination After the Second World War this perspective changed the modern constitution owes its authority not only to collective authorship it also must commit itself credibly to human rights Thus people recede into the background and the national constitution becomes embedded into one or other system of peer review among nations This is what Alexander Somek argues is the creation of the cosmopolitan constitution Reconstructing what he considers to be the three stages in the development of constitutionalism he argues that the cosmopolitan constitution is not a blueprint for the constitution beyond the nation state let alone a constitution of the international community rather it stands for constitutional law reaching out beyond its national bounds This cosmopolitan constitution has two faces the first political face reflects the changed circumstances of constitutional authority It conceives itself as constrained by international human rights protection firmly committed to combating discrimination on the grounds of nationality and to embracing strategies for managing its interaction with other sites of authority such as the United Nations The second administrative face of the cosmopolitan constitution reveals the demise of political authority which has been traditionally vested in representative bodies Political processes yield to various and often informal strategies of policy co ordination so long as there are no reasons to fear that the elementary civil rights might be severely interfered with It represents constitutional authority for an administered world

Me, Me, Me Jon Lawrence, 2019-09-01 Many commentators tell us that in today s world everyday life has become selfish and atomised that individuals live only to consume But are they wrong In Me Me Me Jon Lawrence re tells the story of England since the Second World War through the eyes of ordinary people including his own parents to argue that in fact friendship family and place all remain central to our daily lives and whilst community has changed it is far from dead He shows how in the years after the Second World War people came increasingly to question custom and tradition as the pressure to conform to societal standards became intolerable And as soon as they could millions escaped the closed face to face communities of Victorian Britain where everyone knew your business But this was not a rejection of community per se but an attempt to find another new way of living which was better suited to the modern world Community has become personal and voluntary based on genuine affection rather than proximity or need We have never been better connected or able to sustain the relationships that matter to us Me Me Me makes that case that it s time we valued and nurtured these new groups rather than lamenting the loss of more real forms of community it is all too easy to hold on to a nostalgic view of the past
