Monuments on the Horizon Quentin Bourgeois, 2013 Barrows as burial markers are ubiquitous throughout North Western Europe In some regions dense concentrations of monuments form peculiar configurations such as long alignments while in others they are spread out extensively dotting vast areas with hundreds of mounds These vast barrow landscapes came about through thousands of years of additions by several successive prehistoric and historic communities Yet little is known about how these landscapes developed and came about That is what this research set out to do By unravelling the histories of specific barrow landscapes in the Low Countries several distinct activity phases of intense barrow construction could be recognised Each of these phases contributed in a particular fashion to how the barrow landscape developed and reveals shifting attitudes to these landscape monuments By creating new monuments in a specific place and in a particular fashion prehistoric communities purposefully transformed the form and shape of the barrow landscape Using several GIS techniques such as a skyline analysis this research was able to demonstrate how each barrow then took up a specific and different position within such a social landscape While the majority of the barrows were only visible from relatively close by specific monuments took up a dominating position cresting the horizon and they were visible from much further away It was argued that these burial mounds remained important landscape monuments on the purple heathlands They continued to attract attention and by their visibility ensured to endure in the collective memory of the communities shaping themselves around these monuments This publication is part of the Ancestral Mounds Research Project of the University of Leiden

Latin American Horizons Don Stephen Rice, 1993

No Visible Horizon Joshua Cooper Ramo, 2007-11-01 The flying life has always demanded a passage across the razor s edge At any moment you could slip to the other side a gas leak weather fire in the cockpit Sometimes what made the risks particularly horrible was that you could watch your mistakes play out in front of you as a chorus of guilt followed you down Usually you survived and could describe this music to others but none of you not even with a long and growing trail of dead friends ever stopped flying That was the truly unthinkable thing In a good year aerobatics is one of the most beautiful sports imaginable Pilots pull through impossibly elegant figures twisting their planes at hundreds of miles an hour The stress on their bodies reaches ten times the force of gravity but this is nothing compared to the strain on their minds and the tension in their souls In a bad year no sport kills more of its participants To fly really well and to win you must depart the land of the possible and enter a place of pure faith In this stunning literary debut Joshua Cooper Ramo has crafted a meditation on the seduction of flight and a passionate love letter to a life of risk It is partly the story of his own decision after a decade of casual aerobatics to transform himself into a serious competitive pilot aiming to finish high at the U S national competition He introduces us to some of the greatest aerobatic pilots in the world geniuses like Leo Loudenslager a mild mannered American Airlines pilot who spent his weekends redefining what it was possible to do in the air with a plane flying figures so hard they made his eyes bleed as he whimpered with pain in the cockpit or Kirby

Chambliss the Arizona pilot who performed figures just inches off the runway and sent his plane shooting through holes in cliffs The classics of flight and extreme adventure West With the Night Wind Sand and Stars and Into Thin Air have brought a poetic vision to their subjects No Visible Horizon is an elegant and thrilling exploration not simply of a pilot's physical battle against gravity but of his dream of perfection and his quest for faith The National Union Catalog, Pre-1956 Imprints
