Baromey, 2008 Sustainable Tourism in Island Destinations Rachel Dodds, Sonya Graci, 2012-07-26 Many of the world s islands are dependent on tourism as their main source of income It is therefore imperative that these destinations are managed for long term viability The natural appeal of a destination is typically one of its main tourism related assets yet the natural environment is also the feature most directly threatened by potential overexploitation Sustainable Tourism in Island Destinations builds on existing literature in the subject by providing innovative discussions and practical management structures through the use of the authors various island project work An original feature is the focus on islands which are part of larger nations rather than just on island sovereign states Through an illustrated case study approach the book focuses on the successes and challenges islands face in achieving sustainable tourism The authors put forward innovative mechanisms such as multi stakeholder partnerships and incentive driven non regulatory approaches as ways that the sustainability agenda can move forward in destinations that face specific challenges due to their geography and historic

Best Practice Guidelines for Great Ape Tourism Elizabeth J. Macfie, Elizabeth A. Williamson, 2010 Executive summary Tourism is often proposed 1 as a strategy to fund conservation efforts to protect great apes and their habitats 2 as a way for local communities to participate in and benefit from conservation activities on behalf of great apes or 3 as a business A few very successful sites point to the considerable potential of conservation based great ape tourism but it will not be possible to replicate this success everywhere The number of significant risks to great apes that can arise from tourism require a cautious approach If great ape tourism is not based on sound conservation principles right from the start the odds are that economic objectives will take precedence the consequences of which in all likelihood would be damaging to the well being and eventual survival of the apes and detrimental to the continued preservation of their habitat All great ape species and subspecies are classified as Endangered or Critically Endangered on the IUCN Red List of Threatened Species IUCN 2010 therefore it is imperative that great ape tourism adhere to the best practice guidelines in this document The guiding principles of best practice in great ape tourism are Tourism is not a panacea for great ape conservation or revenue generation Tourism can enhance long term support for the conservation of great apes and their habitat Conservation comes first it must be the primary goal at any great ape site and tourism can be a tool to help fund it Great ape tourism should only be developed if the anticipated conservation benefits as identified in impact studies significantly outweigh the risks Enhanced conservation investment and action at great ape tourism sites must be sustained in perpetuity Great ape tourism management must be based on sound and objective science Benefits and profit for communities adjacent to great ape habitat should be maximised Profit to private sector partners and others who earn income associated with tourism is also important but should not be the driving force for great ape tourism development or expansion Comprehensive understanding of potential impacts must guide tourism development positive impacts from tourism must be maximised and negative impacts must be avoided or if inevitable better understood and mitigated The ultimate success or failure of great ape tourism can lie in variables that may not be obvious to policymakers who base their decisions primarily on earning revenue for struggling conservation programmes However a number of biological geographical economic and global factors can affect a site so as to render ape tourism ill advised or unsustainable This can be due for example to the failure of the tourism market for a particular site to provide revenue sufficient to cover the development and operating costs or it can result from failure to protect the target great apes from the large number of significant negative aspects inherent in tourism Either of these failures will have serious consequences for the great ape population Once apes are habituated to human observers they are at increased risk from poaching and other forms of conflict with humans They must be protected in perpetuity even if tourism fails or ceases for any reason Great ape tourism should not be developed without conducting critical feasibility analyses to ensure there is sufficient potential for success Strict attention must be paid to the design of the enterprise its implementation and continual management capacity in a manner that avoids or at least minimises the negative impacts of tourism on local communities and on the apes themselves Monitoring programmes to track costs and impacts as well as benefits is essential to inform management on how to optimise tourism for conservation benefits These guidelines have been developed for both existing and potential great ape tourism sites that wish to improve the degree to which their programme contributes to the conservation rather than the exploitation of great apes

THE ART OF TRAVEL: SUSTAINABLE TOURISM IN A CHANGING WORLD Prof. (Dr.) M P Sharma, Chef Sunil Kumar, Dr. Dharna Shukla, Dr. Ranjeeta Tripathi, 2024-11-16 In an era marked by rapid globalization and technological advancements travel has evolved beyond the mere pursuit of leisure to become a transformative journey that intertwines environmental responsibility cultural preservation and economic vitality Sustainable tourism at its core strives to balance the needs of travelers with the imperative of safeguarding the planet's natural and cultural heritage As the travel industry experiences exponential growth it also faces unprecedented challenges including environmental degradation loss of biodiversity and the erosion of cultural authenticity Addressing these issues requires a paradigm shift urging travelers governments and businesses to adopt sustainable practices that minimize negative impacts while maximizing positive contributions to local communities and ecosystems Environmental sustainability is an essential pillar of sustainable tourism The ecological footprint of tourism activities ranging from carbon emissions from transportation to the strain on water resources in over visited destinations highlights the need for innovative solutions Efforts such as promoting eco friendly accommodations encouraging the use of renewable energy and fostering responsible consumption habits among travelers are critical steps toward mitigating the environmental toll of tourism Moreover protecting biodiversity and preserving fragile ecosystems demand a collaborative approach with local communities playing a central role in conservation initiatives Integrating environmental education into tourism can also inspire travelers to adopt a more conscious and ethical approach to exploring the world Economically sustainable tourism offers an avenue for inclusive growth and poverty alleviation By prioritizing local enterprises such as homestays artisanal crafts and community led experiences tourism can directly benefit indigenous populations and empower marginalized groups This economic model not only enhances the authenticity of travel experiences but also ensures that financial benefits are equitably distributed reducing the dependency of local economies on exploitative practices However achieving such outcomes necessitates robust policies and frameworks that prevent overtourism and encourage long term investment in community development Cultural preservation forms another cornerstone of sustainable tourism The globalization of travel often leads to the commodification of cultural heritage threatening the integrity of traditional practices and identities
