Hacker Culture and the New Rules of Innovation Tim Rayner, 2018-02-28 Fifteen years ago a company was considered innovative if the CEO and board mandated a steady flow of new product ideas through the company's innovation pipeline. Innovation was a carefully planned process driven from above and tied to key strategic goals. Nowadays innovation means entrepreneurship, self-organizing teams, fast ideas and cheap customer experiments. Innovation is driven by hacking and the world's most innovative companies proudly display their hacker credentials. Hacker culture grew up on the margins of the computer industry. It entered the business world in the twenty-first century through agile software development, design thinking and lean startup methods, the pillars of the contemporary startup industry. Startup incubators today are filled with hacker entrepreneurs running fast, cheap experiments to push against the limits of the unknown. As corporations, not for profits and government departments pick up on these practices seeking to replicate the creative energy of the startup industry, hacker culture is changing how we think about leadership, work and innovation. This book is for business leaders, entrepreneurs and academics interested in how digital culture is reformatting our economies and societies. Shifting between a big picture view on how hacker culture is changing the digital economy and a detailed discussion of how to create and lead in-house teams of hacker entrepreneurs, it offers an essential introduction to the new rules of innovation and a practical guide to building the organizations of the future.

Build To Order Glenn Parry, Andrew Peter Graves, 2008-07-23 Over the past 100 years the European Automotive Industry has been repeatedly challenged by best practice. First by the United States through the development of mass production pioneered by Henry Ford and more recently by lean production techniques as practised by the leading Japanese producers, particularly Toyota. It has consistently risen to these challenges and has shown it can compete and even outperform its competitors with world-class products. However, the European industry is now faced with growing competition and growth from new emerging low cost countries and needs to re define its competitive advantage to remain at the forefront of the sector Automotive growth is driven by two factors new markets and new technologies Global competition is increasing with technology and product differentiation becoming the most important sales factors but with continued cost pressure Within the market the winners will be more profitable and the losers will disappear The Automotive Industry makes a significant contribution to the socio economic fabric of the European Union Manufacturing output represents 700 billion and research and development spending 24 billion European automotive suppliers number 5000 member companies and represent 5 million employees and generate 500 billion in revenues These are significant figures that generate wealth and high value employment within the EU European firms must consistently improve their competitive position to ensure that the industry does not migrate to growing new markets
