

Character Of Abigail Williams in The Crucible

The Crucible–Abigail Williams

The Crucible is a play about vengeance and power. Abigail Williams manipulates an entire town to do her bidding, stemming from her want to save her reputation and to be able to finally have the man she lusts over. Abigail becomes one of the main antagonists of the play through her deceitful and selfish antics. Abigail's character traits, motivations and conflicts are key factors in driving the plot of The Crucible.

Abigail Williams can be described in a number of words. One is deceitful. The moment we meet Abigail, she is immediately described as one "with an endless capacity for dissembling". This deceit and manipulative behavior is the main cause of the hysteria of the Salem Witch Trials. Another characteristic is vengeful. Abigail loves John Proctor, but his wife Elizabeth threw her out and began starting rumors about her. To get back at her and to finally have John, Elizabeth accuses her of being a witch. Also, when Mary Warren tries to tell the truth towards the end of the play, Abigail feigns a spiritual attack and tries to deter Mary from speaking the truth. Finally, Abigail Williams is selfish. She shows no remorse for causing the death of 20 innocent people all because of her want for John and to save her reputation.

Abigail's motivations stem from her character traits. Obviously, one of her main reasons for causing the Witch Hunts is to accuse Elizabeth Proctor of witchcraft. Abigail believes that by doing so she will finally be able to be with her lover and "dance with me on my wife's grave." This motivation came from the moment Abigail and John Proctor first became romantically involved. "I saw you when you were still a boy, John. I
