The Deserter, and Other Stories

Harold Frederic, 1898 It was the coldest morning of the winter thus far and winter is no joke on those northern tablelands where the streams still run black in token of their forest origin and old men remember how the deer used to be driven to their clearings for food when the snow had piled itself breast high through the fastnesses of the Adirondacks The wilderness had been chopped and burned backward out of sight since their pioneer days but this change if anything served only to add greater bitterness to the winter's cold Certainly it seemed to Job Parshall that this was the coldest morning he had ever known It would be bad enough when daylight came but the darkness of this early hour made it almost too much for flesh and blood to bear There had been a stray star or two visible overhead when he first came out of doors at half past four but even these were missing now

The Deserter, and Other Stories: A Book of Two Wars Harold Frederic, 2019-12-05 In The Deserter and Other Stories A Book of Two Wars Harold Frederic masterfully weaves a tapestry of narratives that explore the harrowing and transformative experiences of war from multiple perspectives His prose characterized by its vivid imagery and psychological depth invites readers into the intimate lives of soldiers and civilians alike illuminating the moral ambiguities and mundane realities of conflict Frederic's work reflects the literary context of the late 19th century wherein naturalism and realism began to expose the harsh truths of human existence providing a powerful commentary on the nature of duty honor and choice amid chaos Harold Frederic an American novelist and journalist was profoundly shaped by his own experiences during the Civil War and his extensive travels His acute observations of social and political landscapes during turbulent times informed his literary voice and moral intensity Frederic's ability to document the psychological aftermath of battle and the struggles of identity in wartime has marked him as a keen observer of human nature setting the groundwork for his poignant storytelling This collection is highly recommended for readers seeking a profound exploration of the human condition

through the lens of war Frederic's nuanced characters and compelling narratives make The Deserter not just a reflection of historical realities but a timeless meditation on loss resilience and the search for meaning a must read for those interested in the complexities of wartime narratives
