United States of America

IN CONGRESS. JULY 4th 1776.

The Declaration of the thirteen united States of America

We the Representatives of the thirteen united States of America, do hereby declare...

IN CONGRESS

United States of America

When in the course of human events, it becomes necessary for one people to dissolve the political bands which have connected them with another, and to assume among the powers of the earth, the separate and equal station to which the laws of Nature entitle them; a decent respect to the opinions of mankind requires that they should declare the causes which impel them to the separation.

We hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal, that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable Rights, that among these are Life, Liberty and the pursuit of Happiness. — That to secure these rights, Governments are instituted among Men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed, — That whenever any Form of Government becomes destructive of these ends, it is the Right of the People to alter or to abolish it, and to institute new Government, laying its foundation on such principles and organizing its powers in such form, as shall seem to them to be most likely to effect their Safety and Happiness. Prudence, in such a case, would dictate that Governments long established should not be changed for light and transient causes; and accordingly all experience hath shewn, that no long train of abuses and usurpations, pursuing invariably the same Object, ought to be tolerated for a long time, by a wise and virtuous People. That, when a long train of such abuses and usurpations, pursuing invariably the same Object, hath exposed the same to be a design to reduce them to absolute Tyranny, it is their right, it is their duty, to throw off such Government, and to provide new Guards for their future security. — That the United States, by the consent of the governed, are now united into one Nation, one People, one Sovereignty, but coming from separate and independent States and Princes, they now declare, that these United States are, one People, one Nation, one Sovereignty, and that they are entitled to all the Rights and Liberties of such United States.

unanimous Declaration of the thirteen united States of

When in the course of human events it becomes necessary for one people to dissolve the political bands which have connected them with another, and to assume among the powers of the earth, the separate and equal station to which the laws of Nature and of Nature's God entitle them, a decent respect to the opinions of mankind requires that they should declare the causes which impel them to the separation.

We hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal, that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable Rights, that among these are Life, Liberty and the pursuit of Happiness. — That to secure these rights, Governments are instituted among Men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed, — That whenever any Form of Government becomes destructive of these ends, it is the Right of the People to alter or to abolish it, and to institute new Government, laying its foundation on such Principles and organizing its Powers in such Manner, as shall seem to them to be most likely to effect their Safety and Happiness. Prudence, in such a Case, would dictate that Governments long established should not be changed for light and transient causes; and accordingly all experience hath shewn, that even the most arduous struggle for Liberty may be necessary to bring men to the full sense of their right to the separation.

But when a long train of abuses and usurpations, pursuing invariably the same System of Oppression, has connected the Colonies with their former Masters, until they have been obliged to take Arms against Tyranny, and to assume the independent and equal station to which the Laws of Nature and of Nature's God entitle them, a decent respect to the Rights of the People requires that they should declare the causes which impel them to the separation.

We the Representatives of the thirteen united States of America, in Congress assembled, do hereby declare that these United Colonies are, and of Right ought to be, free and independent States, that they are absolved from all Allegiance to the British Crown, and that all former Connections with them are hereby declared void.

In Witness whereof, we have hereunto set our Hands and Seals, at the City of Philadelphia, the fifth Day of September, in the second Year of the said Declaration of Independence.
