Shaw,2018-08-06 Narrating Reality offers a provocative and original critique of nineteenth century British realist fiction and our ways of understanding it Paying close attention to the role of the narrator Harry E Shaw challenges the denigration of realism that has become a critical orthodoxy in recent decades Drawing on such thinkers as Erich Auerbach Jürgen Habermas and J L Austin Shaw contends that realist novels claim not to replicate the world in their pages or to offer transparent access to it but to involve readers in a process of narrative understanding adequate to grasping the complexities of life in history Seen in this light the works of such novelists as Sir Walter Scott Jane Austen and George Eliot as they depict their own and other cultures and strive to imagine regions of freedom in the dense and constricting web of history gain a new interest

The Sentimental Education of the Novel Margaret Cohen, 2018-06-05 The nineteenth century French novel has long been seen as the heroic production of great men who confronted in their works the social consequences of the French Revolution And it is true that French realism especially as developed by Balzac and Stendhal was one of the most influential novelistic forms ever invented Margaret Cohen however challenges the traditional account of the genesis of realism by returning Balzac and Stendhal to the forgotten novelistic contexts of their time Reconstructing a key formative period for the novel she shows how realist codes emerged in a hostile take over of a prestigious contemporary sentimental practice of the novel which was almost completely dominated by women writers Cohen draws on impressive archival research resurrecting scores of forgotten nineteenth century novels to demonstrate that the codes most closely identified with realism were actually the invention of sentimentality a powerful aesthetic of emerging liberal democratic society although Balzac and Stendhal trivialized sentimental works by associating them with frivolous women writers and readers Attention to these gendered struggles over genre explains why women were not pioneers of realism in France during the nineteenth century a situation that contrasts with England where women writers played a formative role in inventing the modern realist novel Cohen argues that to understand how literary codes respond to material factors it is imperative to see how such factors take shape within the literary field as well as within society as a whole The book also proposes that attention to literature as a social institution will help critics resolve the current vital question of how to practice literary history in the wake of poststructuralism

Among other topics he discusses the canon the value of the Bible as historical evidence the Bible's witness to the faith and the place of Scripture in worship.
