

Cell Cycle and Mitosis Drag and Drop

Practice labeling the phases of the cell cycle in the next slide by dragging and dropping the labels to the correct position. Recall that cell division (mitosis) is a way for organisms to grow and repair tissues by creating new cells.

Cells that have a full set of chromosomes (body cells) are called diploid, cells with half of a set (sex cells) are haploid. Mitosis creates two daughter cells with the exact same number of chromosomes as the original.
