Contents: The Layton Court Mystery, The Wychford Poisoning Case, The at Lovers Cove, The Silk Stocking Murders, The Wintringham Mystery, Cicely Disappears, Crime and Punishment in Twentieth Century Ireland by Seamus Breathnach, 2005.

This book was written as part of a much wider criminological enterprise designed at creating a real and critical basis for criminological enquiry in Ireland. Properly understood, the Criminal Justice System (CJS) is every bit as important to society as the circular flow of money. No government would dream of conducting its business without the advice of an economist or indeed providing an econometric model of the economy. Yet when it comes to the CJS, governments take the opposite view and legislate in the dark, hardly reconnoitering for a moment to see what effect proposed legislation will have on the several institutions it invariably affects. Maybe this was okay when those effects could not be calculated. But such is no longer the case. In 1967, a President's Commission on Law Enforcement and the Administration of Justice featured a model of criminal justice entitled The Challenge of Crime in a Free Society. Incredibly misunderstood and widely neglected, this model marked a breakthrough, the first step as it were in coming to terms with the multiple agencies that go to make up what has come to be called the Criminal Justice System (CJS). In Volumes 2 and 3 of the present series, Seamus Breathnach traces the initial steps necessary to complete the revolution begun by the President's Commission. In doing this, he reveals the systematized neglect of the CJS in the Republic of Ireland for years 1950-80. In eight lectures, he delineates the Republic's inability to get its act together or to engage the terms or significance of the 67 landmark, an inability that is anchored both in a deep religious resistance to the secular social sciences as well as an exaggerated estimation of the criminal lawyer as social commentator From this study it appears that the first step for criminologists is to see the CJS as a totality to see it as a social process clamoring to be rescued from the spokesmen of the discrete agencies that comprise it Mermaid Syndrome Barbara Leyva,2002-04-18 Short stories of the unusual the impossible flights of fantasy meant to entertain New York Court of Appeals.
