The Development Alternative:

Development Crises and Alternative Visions Gita Sen, Caren Grown, 2013-11-05 More than half of the world's farmers are women. They are the majority of the poor, the uneducated, and are the first to suffer from drought and famine. Yet their subordination is reinforced by well-meaning development policies that perpetuate social inequalities. During the 1975-85 United Nations Decade for the Advancement of Women, their position actually worsened. This book analyses three decades of policies towards Third World women. Focusing on global economic and political crises, debt, famine, militarization, fundamentalism, the authors show how women's moves to organize effective strategies for basic survival are central to an understanding of the development process.

Alternative Development Cathrine Brun, Piers Blaikie, 2016-03-23 This book brings together a collection of essays that discuss alternative development and its relevance for local/global processes of marginalization and change in the Global South. Alternative development questions who the producers of development knowledges and practices are and aims at decentring development and geographical knowledge from the Anglo-American centre and the Global North. It involves resistance to dominant political/economic processes in order to further the possibilities for non-exploitative and just forms of development. By discussing how to unravel marginalization and voice change through alternative methods, actors, and concepts, the book provides useful guidance on understanding the relationship between theory and practice. The main strength of the book is that it calls for a central role for alternative development in the current development discourse, most notably related to justice, rights, globalization, forced migration, conflict, and climate change. The book provides new ways of engaging with alternative development thinking and making development alternatives relevant.

The Churches and the Development Debate Ignatius Swart, 2006-05-01 This book newly addresses the question about the Christian churches' participation in development. The innovative element of this reflection is the way in which the author finds meaning and significance, particularly in the concept of a fourth generation approach to strategic development engagement. The book's essential argument is that a fourth generation strategy, an approach that makes the contemporary social or people's movements the primary subjects of its development action and theory, holds the greatest prospect for authentic participation by the Christian churches in development.

Buen Vivir as an Alternative to Sustainable Development Natasha Chassagne, 2020-11-22 Until recently, the concept of Buen Vivir has only been loosely articulated by practising communities and in progressive policy in countries like Ecuador. What it actually means has been unclear, and in the case of policy, contradictory. As such, there has been a lack of understanding about exactly what Buen Vivir entails, its core principles, and how to put it into practice. This book, based on extensive theoretical and field research of Buen Vivir as an alternative to sustainable development, fills that gap and offers a concrete way forward. It uses an ethnographic study in Cotacachi County in Ecuador's highland communities to explore how communities understand and practice Buen Vivir. Combining this with what we already know about the concept theoretically, the book then develops a framework for Buen Vivir with 17 principles for practice Exploring Buen Vivir s evolution from its indigenous origins academic interpretations and implications for development policy to its role in endogenous community led change this book will be of interest to policy makers and development professionals It will also be of great value to activists students and scholars of sustainability and development seeking grassroots social and environmental change Fremont General
