England and the Caribbean Paul Miller,2016-01-28 What drives school leaders What do they do on a day to day basis What helps or constrains their decision making What keeps them focused amidst challenges Rather than applying theory to practice Exploring School Leadership in England and the Caribbean draws on how school leaders practice and experience their own leadership Paul Miller draws on case studies from Jamaica and England to explore what it means to be a school leader and explores a wide range of issues including accountability performativity inclusion and multiculturalism technology staffing and resourcing decisions While no two school leaders will have identical experiences as a school leader Paul Miller draws on the first hand accounts of school leaders to show that regardless of school size type and location there are a number of common experiences and themes Miller acknowledges that the practice of school leadership is occurring in an Education Susan Tave Zelman,Margaret Erlandson Sorensen,2022-10-17 American educators and policy makers have grown increasingly frustrated in recent decades as attempts to enhance equity and bring American student learning to the level experienced in other countries have faltered Recent efforts have included the standards movement as well as broad expansion of school choice These endeavors which largely rely on market based thinking assume that individual schools and teachers have the will and ability to do better if only prodded by competition and other sticks and carrots Such attempts overlook flaws in a system developed to provide a common education while also subdividing resources to maintain privilege for some This book traces the history of American education as a foundation to examining persistent weaknesses in education today Meaningful reform and improvement which are urgent needs will require broad systemic change based on the engagement of many sectors This book offers a vision for such reform Following successful models in other countries suggests options for moving away from current deeply enmired systemic inequities to a system better suited to meeting a broad range of educational needs A portfolio of diverse schools regionally administered and held accountable for student learning presents an option for moving away from inequitable district structures and scatter shot choice options The critical questions are how to get there from here and do we have the will to do so The book concludes with suggestions on how to start the process 2100 Business Books, and Guide to Business Literature Newark Public Library. Business

Branch,1920 Military Recruiting in High Schools Brian W. Lagotte,2016-07-08 This book focuses exclusively on specific education policy instead of general military recruiting in high schools When the George W Bush administration passed its landmark education legislation in 2001 dubbed the No Child Left Behind Act legislators included a small section containing strict military recruiting mandates for public high schools The law had two main provisions First a data sharing provision requires high schools to distribute the personal directory information of every student to all local armed forces recruiting stations on an annual basis Second the equal access provision requires high schools to provide military recruiters access to school grounds equal to university recruiters or career recruiters For accountability if these provisions are not fulfilled the school will lose all federal education funds Students or parents may opt out of the data collection through a bureaucratic process but no such opt out option exists for the soldiers visiting schools When President Barack Obama renewed the omnibus education law in 2015 the name changed to the Every Student Succeeds Act but the military mandates remained the provisions were strengthened by including a passage prohibiting any local school board from instituting an opt in bureaucratic structure for parents and students This book focuses on how the two provisions have been met by parents school staff soldiers and other individuals influenced by high school education policy and military recruiting The central question is do military recruiting methods utilized in public high schools work to promote the best interests of the students or should policy makers rethink the freedom adult soldiers have when interacting with children within schools Tax-exempt Status of Private Schools United States.
