

Reflection Paper

I am fully aware as to why Davao City has been and continuously regarded as one of the safest cities in the Philippines. Compared to my hometown I have lived in for a long time, it is indeed a safe city to live in. One of the major factors on the system is the Police Task Forces in Davao City, who are in charge of ensuring the safety and security of the city's residents and upholding peace and order. It is fairly certain that the techniques they have established to prevent terrorist attacks in the city are absolutely astonishing. They have created the Culture of Security, which prevents the core motive that the terrorist groups need to attack the city; such as threats, entry points to access the city and the opportunity to carry out their ambitions.

The only issue I've personally noticed, both in the video and in real life is that it was brought up in the video that there are instances of reckless checkpoints in the city. One time I was visiting Davao, we had asked to disembark from the bus when we arrived in the city so that the Task Force Davao could inspect our luggage for potential threats. One thing I had trouble with throughout my bus journey was that when I got to release my bag to the officer, it did not undergo a thorough inspection that checks for threats inside the baggage, and the checking happens really quick which is very negligent and could lead to possible entry of bombs or other deadly weapons.

But, when I returned to Davao City, they checked everything properly and there was a machine checking what our bags contained which was reassuring. It is remarkable how the city quickly adapts to everything that has happened previously and how meticulous they are in maintaining peace and safety in order to prevent future tragedies like bombings that happened a few years ago. One instance is their restricting the carrying of backpacks at the Roxas Night Market to reduce the threat of bombing once more in that place. I also love the fact that they conduct random checks there. As I was wandering around the downtown area in the city, there were police that checked my backpack from time to time because they noticed that it was too bulky when in fact the contents of it are my laptop and clothes to wear since I'm looking for a rental house to reside in. Although it took quite a while because they have to inspect it thoroughly, I do not mind how long it takes for as long as I can somewhat contribute to the citizens' and the city's safety.

I've learned a lot about the Task Force Davao's movements and operations in the city after viewing the film. To sum it up, I've observed how swiftly they pick things up and adjust to new circumstances just to stop it from happening again. They not only follow safety and security procedures, but they also see to it that Davao City residents are informed and at ease. They carry out events, make announcements, and run programs to achieve this.

The Course Reflection Project Nicole Schonemann, Emily Metzgar, Andrew Libby, 2015-05-01 Service learning is entering a post initiatory phase At tertiary institutions of all types and sizes service learning programs are common and service learning requirements for graduation are growing in popularity Taken together alongside continued faculty interest in effective teaching these factors have raised the visibility and popularity of service learning Now the greater need in service learning is not to prove the need for or efficacy of service learning but to turn the focus squarely back on practice Following established best practice is not enough instructors also need to reflect on how this fits within the specific context and application of each unique course and service learning partnership While there are many excellent resources that detail best practice and showcase exemplary service learning courses faculty reflection and course revision often goes unmentioned In response to the lack of attention on the role of reflection and course revision we convened groups of faculty from a variety of disciplines to reflect deeply on their courses paying specific attention to obstacles and challenges These conversations were converted to articles for this edited collection each chapter representing the process of reflection and revision and serving as a guide to develop effective practice in varied curricular contexts This text contributes to the body of literature on service learning in a unique and practical manner Faculty teaching or interested in teaching service learning classes would benefit from this text as well as university administrators and community service directors involved in service learning at a programmatic and institutional level This book should be marketed to faculty teaching disciplinary service learning classes and service learning pedagogy classes and administrative offices involved in service learning This could be a supplementary text for graduate level pedagogy courses Higher education institutional libraries would benefit from this text as well as the national and state campus compact offices

Managers Not MBAs Henry Mintzberg, 2005-06-02 In this sweeping critique of how managers are educated and how as a consequence management is practiced Henry Mintzberg offers thoughtful and controversial ideas for reforming both The MBA trains the wrong people in the wrong ways with the wrong consequences Mintzberg writes Using the classroom to help develop people already practicing management is a fine idea but pretending to create managers out of people who have never managed is a sham Leaders cannot be created in a classroom They arise in context But people who already practice management can significantly improve their effectiveness given the opportunity to learn thoughtfully from their own experience Mintzberg calls for a more engaging approach to managing and a more reflective approach to management education He also outlines how business schools can become true schools of management

Wurdinger,2005-04-13 While research and common sense tells us that experiential learning is more effective than the more traditional process of information assimilation where teachers lecture test and grade high school college and university teachers continue to use paper and pencil tests as their primary grading and assessment tool Many students fail to see the relevance of these sort of tests and are bored with passive methods of learning Using Experiential Learning in the Classroom Practical Ideas for All Educators explains what experiential learning is why it works and how it can be used in both high school and post secondary educational settings Tools for assessing experiential learning are also provided A must have resource for high school teachers and college professors Teaching Race Stephen D. Brookfield,2018-11-05 A real world how to manual for talking about race in the classroom Educators and activists frequently call for the need to address the lingering presence of racism in higher education Yet few books offer specific suggestions and advice on how to introduce race to students who believe we live in a post racial world where racism is no longer a real issue

In Teaching Race the authors offer practical tools and techniques for teaching and discussing racial issues at predominately White institutions of higher education. As current events highlight the dynamics surrounding race and racism on campus and the world beyond, this book provides teachers with essential training to facilitate productive discussion and raise racial awareness in the classroom. A variety of teaching and learning experts provide insights, tips, and guidance on running classroom discussions on race. They present effective approaches and activities to bring reluctant students into a consideration of race and explore how White teachers can model racial awareness, thereby inviting students into the process of examining their own white identity. Racism, whether evident in overt displays or subconscious bias, has repercussions that reverberate far beyond the campus grounds. As the cultural climate increasingly calls out for more research, education, and dialogue on race and racism, this book helps teachers spotlight issues related to race in a way that leads to effective classroom and campus conversation. The book provides guidance on how to create the conditions that facilitate respectful racial dialogue by building trust and effectively negotiating conflict. Uncover each student's own subconscious bias and the intersectionality that exists even in the most homogenous appearing classrooms. Help students embrace discomfort and adapt discussion methods to accommodate issues of race and positionality. Avoid common traps, mistakes, and misconceptions encountered in anti-racist teaching. Predominantly White institutions face a number of challenges in dealing with race issues, including a lack of precedence, an absence of modeling by campus leaders, and little clear guidance on how teachers can identify and challenge racism on campus. Teaching Race is packed with activities, suggestions, and exercises to provide practical, real-world help for teachers trying to introduce race in class.
