

Writing a Literature Review

A literature review...

- Provides an overview and a critical evaluation of a body of literature relating to a research topic or a research problem.
- Analyzes a body of literature in order to classify it by themes or categories, rather than simply discussing individual works one after another.
- Presents the research and ideas of the field rather than each individual work or author by itself.

A literature review often forms part of a larger research project, such as within a thesis (or major research paper), or it may be an independent written work, such as a synthesis paper.

Purpose of a literature review

A literature review situates your topic in relation to previous research and illuminates a spot for your research. It accomplishes several goals:

- provides background for your topic using previous research.
- shows you are familiar with previous, relevant research.
- evaluates the depth and breadth of the research in regards to your topic.
- determines remaining questions or aspects of your topic in need of research.

Relationship between a literature review and a research project

Academic research at the graduate level is always part of a dialogue among researchers. As a graduate student, you must therefore indicate that you know where your topic is positioned within your field of study.

Therefore, a literature review is a key part of most research projects at the graduate level. There is often a reciprocal relationship between a literature review and the research project for which it is written:

- A research project is often undertaken in response to a literature review. Doing the literature review for a topic often reveals areas requiring further research. In this way, writing the literature review helps to formulate the research question.
- A literature review helps to establish the validity of a research project by revealing gaps in the existing literature on a topic that offer opportunities for new research.

Importance of the research question

Once identified, the research question will drive the research project. Whatever you read or write should have a clear connection to your question.
