space between and the third at right angles to the two In the two which stood end to end and were originally the principal parts hardly any windows Were to be seen on the side that looked out into the valley while in the third which though looking much of the same age was of later build were more windows but none in the lowest story Narrow as were these buildings and four stories high they had a solid ponderous look suggest ing a thickness of the walls such as to leave little of a hollow within for the indwellers like great marine shells for a small mollusk On the other side was a kind of a court completed by the stables and cow houses and towards this court were most of the win dows many of them for size more like those in the cottages around than suggestive of a house built by the lords of the soil The court was now merely that of a farmyard There must have been at one time outer defences to the castle but they were no longer to be distin guished by the inexperienced eye and indeed the windowless walls of the house itself seemed strong enough to repel any attack without artillery except indeed the assailants had got into the court There were however some signs of the windows there having been enlarged if not increased at a later period About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books Find more at www.forgottenbooks.com This book is a reproduction of an important historical work Forgotten Books uses state of the art technology to digitally reconstruct the work preserving the original format whilst repairing imperfections present in the aged copy In rare cases an imperfection in the original such as a blemish or missing page may be replicated in our edition We do however repair the vast majority of imperfections successfully any imperfections that remain are intentionally left to preserve the state of such historical works that defended his view of Christian Universalism George MacDonald was born on 10 December 1824 at Huntly Aberdeenshire Scotland His father a farmer was one of the MacDonalds of Glen Coe and a direct descendant of one of the families that suffered in the massacre of 1692 The Doric dialect of the Aberdeenshire area appears in the dialogue of some of his non fantasy novels MacDonald grew up in the Congregational Church with an atmosphere of Calvinism But MacDonald never felt comfortable with some aspects of Calvinist doctrine indeed legend has it that when the doctrine of predestination was first explained to him he burst into tears although assured that he was one of the elect Later novels such as Robert Falconer and Lilith show a distaste for the idea that God s electing love is limited to some and denied to others MacDonald graduated from the University of Aberdeen and then went to London studying at Highbury College for the Congregational ministry
