J. Langford,Christine L. Forster,Duncan M. Malcolm,1999 Water resource management policies worldwide are at a crossroads On the one hand a remarkable consensus on the principles of reform has emerged On the other hand it has turned out to be difficult to transfer the principles into reality This document describes the distinctive experience of water reform in the state of Victoria Australia which has been a leader in the field The document is a compelling insiders view by three professionals who played central roles in the process Although the Victoria experience emerges from a specific natural cultural historical and political context the generic lessons on the technical and political reform procedures and the links between them are of profound relevance to those engaged in the water reform process throughout the world Annual Report New Jersey. Board of Public Utilities,1918 The Governance of Water Regulators Organisation for Economic Co-Operation and Development (OECD),2015-05-15 The establishment of dedicated regulatory bodies in charge of regulating water services whilst being recent is nevertheless a consistent trend among OECD and non OECD countries This report presents a picture as of September 2014 of the governance arrangements operational modalities and use of regulatory tools across a sample of 34 established water regulators It relies on the OECD Best Practice Principles for Regulatory Policy The Governance of

Regulators to structure the information collected through a survey exercise It has been developed in close co operation with the OECD Network of Economic Regulators NER The results from the survey show that the 34 water regulators show generally a high level of adoption of good governance principles and practices They display functions and powers that are in line with their objectives Water regulators also show a strong culture of consultation Other areas in particular evaluation of regulatory impacts could be further strengthened
