Waterland By Graham Swift:

Waterland Graham Swift, 2012-09-19 Set in the bleak Fen Country of East Anglia and spanning some 240 years in the lives of its haunted narrator and his ancestors Waterland is a book that takes in eels and incest, ale making and madness, the heartless sweep of history and a family romance as tormented as any in Greek tragedy. Waterland like the Hardy novels carries with all else a profound knowledge of a people, a place and their interweaving. Swift tells his tale with wonderful contemporary verve and verbal felicity. A fine and original work. Los Angeles Times Graham Swift's extraordinary masterpiece, a finalist for the Booker Prize, WATERLAND weaves together eels and incest, ale making and madness, the heartless sweep of history and a family romance as tormented as Greek tragedy into one epic story. In the flat, watery Fen Country of East Anglia, a passionate history teacher named Tom Crick is being forced into early retirement from the school where he has taught for thirty years. When a student rebelliously questions the value of the subject to which Tom has devoted his life, Tom responds with his own personal retrospective. His story, intertwined with the stories of the local wetlands, the French Revolution and World War II among other things, throws light onto the dark circumstances of the current day, revealing how his wife's tragic youth led to the events surrounding his forced retirement. A monumental tribute to the past, a gripping multigenerational family saga and a powerful affirmation of the history of self, this exceptional novel illuminates the cycles of time in which we live.

Introduction by Tim Bunting

Waterland Graham Swift, 2002

First published in 1983, Graham Swift's multilayered chronicle set in the Cambridgeshire Fens is widely regarded as one of the finest British novels of the 1980s. Tom Crick is a history teacher, but the history that absorbs him is his own and his family's. The past, with its secrets and oddities, hangs heavy on him, pushing him towards a heartbreaking new crisis in his life. Swift's powerful psychological drama takes in life and death, betrayal and compassion. His setting, the brooding landscape of the marshy Fens, is utterly compelling.

The following chapter will engage Waterland in isolation from Swift's other novels and collection of short stories, not because these texts do not mutually illuminate one another, but because Waterland deserves a treatment of the kind of depth that warrants an extended, concentrated study. That chapter seeks specifically to counter several of the blatant misreadings of the narrator's posture and intent within the novel and to adequately evaluate that posture and intent as they emerge within the full context of the wealth of literary devices Swift employs including irony mythical imagery and scriptural allusion The mythical images and allusions that are touched upon by other critics comprise here the central study close reading biblical hermeneutics and specific strains of French feminism will interact to allow for a reengagement of Waterland beyond the exhausted circular terms of deconstructive relativism

The "Mystery of History", its Functionalisation and Disintegration in Graham Swift's "Waterland" Thorben Höppner,2023-05-02 Seminar paper from the year 2021 in the subject English Language and Literature Studies Literature grade 1.0 language English abstract This paper investigates how the ambivalent perhaps even ambiguous definition of historia relates to the representation of history in the novel and how this representation again relates to its functionalisation by Tom Crick To answer this question this paper will primarily work with Linda Hutcheon's notion of historiographic metafiction while also pointing out similarities to the reading of Waterland as a trauma narrative In taking a closer look at the protagonist narrator himself this paper argues that the protection from chaos and disorder which Landow addresses is only achieved through a form of historical escapism Superficially speaking Graham Swift's Waterland is a novel about a history teacher who having lost his job forsakes the formal teaching of history and embarks on an extracurricular journey into his own past However upon closer examination Waterland is more than that a novel about history itself It explores the whole mystery of history as Swift himself puts it in the introduction to the novel Waterland xv Thus it is only logical that the novel prefaces its narrative with an insightful epigraph a dictionary definition of the Latin word historia from which the English word history originates As can be seen above however said definition is ambivalent it is inherently polysemantic as Judith Ryan notes James Acheson has likewise pointed out that the fact that historia can mean either history or fiction is significant for the historian and the writer of fiction must deal with similar problems in writing about the past The natural tendency of language towards proliferation of its meaning aside the epigraph leaves us with a very ambivalent concept of history which the narrative of Waterland in its dealing with history then builds on. Since such a prominent theme in Waterland, the novel's representation of history has been thoroughly examined in secondary literature particularly against the theoretical background of what Linda Hutcheon has identified as historiographic metafiction.

Allegories of Telling Lynn Wells, 2003. In this critical study, Lynn Wells presents detailed readings of novels by five prominent British authors: John Fowles, Angela Carter, Graham Swift, A.S. Byatt, and Salman Rushdie, with an emphasis on how the texts' self-referential aspects illuminate the acts of reading and writing fiction in contemporary Britain and by extension around the world.
