Growing up in the Bronx Joél Leon was taught that being soft being vulnerable could end your life. Shaped by a singular view of Black masculinity espoused by the media family and friends and society he learned instead to care about the gold around his neck and the number of bills in his wallet. He absorbed the facts that white was always right and that Black men were either threatening or great for comic relief but never worthy of the opening credits. It wasn't until years later that Joél understood he didn't have to be defined by these and other stereotypes. Now in a collection of wide ranging essays he takes readers from his upbringing in the Bronx to his life raising two little girls of his own unraveling those narratives to arrive at a deeper understanding of who he is as a son friend partner and father. Traversing both the serious and the lighthearted from contemplating male beauty standards to his decision to seek therapy to the difficulties of making co-parenting work Joél cracks open his heart to reveal his multitudes. In this book crafted like an album each essay is a single that stands alone yet reverberates throughout the entire collection. Pieces like How to Make a Black Friend consider challenging delightful and absurd moments in relationships while others like Sensitive Thugs You All Need Hugs and All Gold Everything ponder the collective harms of society's lens. With incisive searing prose Everything and Nothing at Once deconstructs what it means to be a Black man in America. Riding the Wind Peter Marshall, 2009-06-10 Where do we come from What are we Where are we going In seeking answers to these fundamental questions Peter Marshall develops a dynamic and organic philosophy for the third millennium which he calls liberation ecology. Deep social and libertarian it seeks to free nature society and individuals from their existing burdens so that they can realize together their full potential. Riding the Wind presents a fresh and inspired vision which combines ancient wisdom and modern insights reason and intuition science and myth. It is an exciting and uplifting work on how to live well and in harmony with oneself with others and with nature. It will appeal to all those adventurous spirits who are searching for meaning and who wish to find their
