Nolt, 2014-12-17 This book offers a completely new and unique introduction to the economics of international relations It treats all the traditional major themes of international relations theory while giving each a refreshing new twist with the incorporation of the influence of private power particularly in the realm of war and peace It reframes the history of the modern global economy and politics by thoroughly purging the myth of the market a systematic blindness to private power It not only draws on but also illuminates major themes and empirical findings of comparative politics business history business strategy business cycle theory social evolutionary theory as well as the practical wisdom of traders and investors Part one introduces the major concepts of competing theories of international relations emphasizing a unique approach corporatism

Part two introduces the critical importance dynamic and oppositional analysis of issues Part three traces the rise of the modern world from the mercantilist period until the rise of modern corporate organizations and the demise of imperialism in the crucible of World War I Part four begins with the origins of the contemporary dominance of business internationalism before and during World War II then analyzes three major facets of the postwar era the unification of much of Europe the industrialization of the Third World and the Cold War and its aftermath The final chapter considers the present and future of a fairly peaceful yet economically unstable world This book presents a refreshing and exciting portrayal of the global economy which challenges every major subject from money to markets to the business cycle This book eschews the economics of dull averages to restore the drama of contending business forces struggling for wealth and in the process influencing war and peace

Regions of War and Peace Douglas Lemke, 2002-01-21 In this contribution to the literature on the causes of war Douglas Lemke asks whether the same factors affect minor powers as affect major ones He investigates whether power parity and dissatisfaction with the status quo have an impact within Africa the Far East the Middle East and South America Lemke argues that there are similarities across these regions and levels of power and that parity and dissatisfaction are correlates of war around the world The extent to which they increase the risk of war varies across regions however and the book looks at the possible sources of this cross regional variation concluding that differential progress toward development is the likely cause This book will interest students and scholars of international relations and peace studies as well as comparative politics and area studies

Peace in International Relations Oliver P. Richmond, 2020-01-06 This updated and revised second edition examines the conceptualisation and evolution of peace in International Relations IR theory The book examines the concept of peace and its usage in the main theoretical debates in IR including realism liberalism constructivism critical theory and post structuralism as well as in the more direct debates on peace and conflict studies It explores themes relating to culture development agency and structure not just in terms of representations of IR and of peace but in terms of the discipline of IR itself The work also specifically explores the recent mantras associated with liberal and neoliberal versions of peace which appear to have become foundational for much of the mainstream literature and for doctrines for peace and development in the policy world Analysing war has often led to the dominance and mitigation of violence as a basic assumption in and response to the problems of IR This study aims to redress this negative balance by arguing that the discipline offers a rich basis for the study of peace which has advanced significantly over the last century or so It also proposes innovative theoretical dimensions of the study of peace with new chapters discussing post colonial and digital developments This book will be of great interest to students of peace and conflict studies politics and IR
