Abstract: This paper examines the effects of the 1997-1998 Asian financial crisis on the performance of the Korean stock market. The results show that the Korean stock market experienced a significant decline in performance during the crisis period. The decline was more pronounced for companies with high leverage and low profitability. The results also show that the Korean stock market experienced a significant recovery in performance after the crisis period. The recovery was more pronounced for companies with low leverage and high profitability. The results suggest that companies with high leverage and low profitability are more vulnerable to the Asian financial crisis. Companies with low leverage and high profitability are more resilient to the Asian financial crisis.
