Approaches to Studying the Enacted Mathematics Curriculum Kathryn Chval, Dan Heck, Iris Weiss, Steven W. Ziebarth, 2012-09-01 Curriculum materials are among the most pervasive and powerful influences on school mathematics In many mathematics classes student assignments the questions the teacher asks the ways students are grouped the forms of assessment and much more originate in curriculum materials At the same time teachers have considerable latitude in how they use their curriculum materials Two classes making use of the same materials may differ markedly in what mathematics content is emphasized and how students are engaged in learning that content This volume considers a variety of research tools for investigating the enactment of mathematics curriculum materials describing the conceptualization development and uses of seven sets of tools Mathematics education researchers curriculum developers teacher educators district supervisors teacher leaders and math coaches will find insights that can improve their work and guidance for selecting adapting and using tools for understanding the complex relationship between curriculum materials and their enactment in classroom instruction

Teaching Mathematics in Grades 6 - 12 Randall E. Groth, 2012-08-10 A journey into the vibrant and intriguing world of mathematics education Teaching Mathematics in Grades 6 12 explores how research in mathematics education can inform teaching practice in grades 6 12 The author shows secondary mathematics teachers the value of being a researcher in the classroom by constantly experimenting with methods for developing students mathematical thinking and then connecting this research to practices that enhance students understanding of the material The chapters in Part I introduce secondary teachers to the field of mathematics education with cross cutting issues that apply to teaching and learning in all mathematics content areas

The chapters in Part II are devoted to specific mathematics content strands and describe how students think about mathematical concepts. The goal of the text is to have secondary math teachers gain a deeper understanding of the types of mathematical knowledge their students bring to grade 6-12 classrooms and how students' thinking may develop in response to different teaching strategies. Mathematics and Science Curriculum Programs, 2002 Christian Home

Thompson, Mary Ann

Huntley, Christine Suurtamm, 2024-09-01. This volume focuses on research related to mathematics curriculum. But rather than focusing on results of research, it focuses on lessons learned about conducting research on curriculum, whether about design and development, analysis of curriculum in the form of official standards or textbook instantiations, teacher intentions related to curriculum implementation or actual classroom enactment. For scholars interested in curriculum research, the volume offers lessons about conducting curriculum research that have been learned by others engaged in such work, including frameworks, tools, and techniques, as well as challenges and issues faced with solutions to address them. Sharing lessons from authors of different countries strengthens the broader mathematics research community and provides insights that can help researchers make important strides forward in research on mathematics curriculum. Standards-based School

Mathematics Curricula Sharon L. Senk, Denisse R. Thompson, 2020-07-24. The Curriculum and Evaluation Standards for School Mathematics, published by the National Council of Teachers of Mathematics in 1989, set forth a broad vision of mathematical content and pedagogy for grades K-12 in the United States. These Standards prompted the development of Standards-based mathematics curricula. What features characterize Standards-based curricula? How well do such curricula work? To answer these questions, the editors invited researchers who had investigated the implementation of 12 different Standards-based mathematics curricula to describe the effects of these curricula on students' learning and achievement and to provide evidence for any claims they made. In particular, authors were asked to identify content on which performance of students using Standards-based materials differed from that of students using more traditional materials and content on which performance of these two groups of students was virtually identical. Additionally, four scholars not involved with the development of any of the materials were invited to write critical commentaries on the work reported in the other chapters. Section I of Standards-Based School Mathematics Curricula provides a historical background to place the current curriculum reform efforts in perspective, a summary of recent recommendations to reform school mathematics, and a discussion of issues that arise when conducting research on student outcomes. Sections II, III, and IV are devoted to research on mathematics curriculum projects for elementary, middle, and high schools, respectively. The final section is a commentary by Jeremy Kilpatrick, Regents Professor of Mathematics Education at the University of Georgia, on the research reported in this book. It provides a historical perspective on the use of research to guide mathematics curriculum reform in schools and makes additional recommendations for further research In addition to the references provided at the end of each chapter other references about the Standards based curriculum projects are provided at the end of the book This volume is a valuable resource for all participants in discussions about school mathematics curricula including professors and graduate students interested in mathematics education curriculum development program evaluation or the history of education educational policy makers teachers parents principals and other school administrators The editors hope that the large body of empirical evidence and the thoughtful discussion of educational values found in this book will enable readers to engage in informed civil discourse about the goals and methods of school mathematics curricula and related research ENC Focus ,1997
