It's Our Easy Game Around the World

the 1990s, the number of people in the United States who are obese has increased by 50 percent. In 1990, 15 percent of the population was obese, and by 2000, that number had risen to 23 percent. In 2008, the number of obese people in the United States was estimated to be 33 percent of the population. The increase in obesity is a major public health concern because it is a leading cause of heart disease, diabetes, and other chronic diseases. The Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) estimates that obesity costs the United States $147 billion each year in medical costs and lost productivity. The CDC also estimates that obesity is responsible for 280,000 deaths each year in the United States. The increase in obesity is a result of a combination of factors, including changes in diet and lifestyle, and a decline in physical activity. The following are some of the factors that contribute to the increase in obesity:

- Changes in diet: The diet of the average American has changed significantly in the past few decades. The diet is now higher in calories, fat, and sugar, and lower in fiber and other nutrients. This has led to an increase in the number of people who are obese.
- Lifestyle changes: The lifestyle of the average American has changed significantly in the past few decades. People are now more sedentary, spending more time sitting at a desk or in front of a television. This has led to a decline in physical activity, which is a major factor in the increase in obesity.
