Un Nouveau Libre Arbitre:

Un nouveau libre arbitre Krystèle Appourchaux, 2014-04-03 Le libre arbitre cette capacité choisir librement ou encore de terminer notre propre volonté semble menacé par les avancées de la psychologie et des neurosciences contemporaines. Or certaines interrogations philosophiques doivent être résolues avant de tirer les conséquences de ces résultats empiriques. Le déterminisme causal qui est au fondement de toute démarche scientifique est-il compatible avec la notion de libre arbitre? Quel type de relation entretiennent l'esprit et le cerveau? L'examen de ces problèmes fondamentaux constitue le préalable à l'interprétation des données issues des neurosciences, en particulier des expériences de Benjamin Libet qui ont semblé remettre en question l'efficacité causale de nos décisions conscientes. Par ailleurs, il est légitime de se demander si les limites de la conscience et le rapport qu'elle entretient avec les processus inconscients qu'ils relèvent de l'Inconscient freudien ou de l'inconscient cognitif mis en lumière par les neurosciences constituent un frein à l'exercice de notre liberté. Cet ouvrage esquisse une solution nouvelle à ces questions. Il montre comment la psychologie et les neurosciences, bien que menaçant la conception traditionnelle du libre arbitre, permettraient de concevoir en leur sein même une redéfinition de cette notion envisagée comme une capacité relative et non plus absolue nécessitant un apprentissage.

New Spiritualities and the Cultures of Well-being Géraldine Mossière, 2022-07-06 Inspired by the neoliberal paradigm that transposes religious behaviors into a religious marketplace framed by consumerist and capitalist models, this volume draws on ethnographic fieldwork to discuss the assemblage between the well-being trope and the rise of new spiritualities as well as their deep permeation within mainstream culture. Building on previous literature that addresses the relationship between spirituality, healing, and well-being, this text discusses the religious roots of mind-body practices. The contributions offer a critical perspective on the scope, limits, and impacts of the current celebration of spiritualities. Part I provides theoretical insights for thinking about ways in which the prevalent ethics of well-being reframes subjectivities within the margins of neoliberal order. Part II demonstrates how spiritual economies are promoted, shaped, and regulated by institutional forces such as States, law, and the labor market. In part III, contributors describe in detail how spiritual economies unfold in specific cultural and social settings. The text appeals to students and researchers working on the spirituality and sociology of religion.

Philosophy of Meaning I Geoffroy de Clisson, 2025-06-02 The philosophy of meaning is structured around four main axes: knowledge, aesthetics, ethics, and identity. By engaging with the question of the emergence of consciousness, it examines the logical limits of materialism and reductionism and offers a critique of physicalist monism in favor of a reimagined dualism, one grounded in the discontinuity between matter and meaning, a discontinuity that alone makes possible the emergence of objective discourse At the heart of this approach lies the idea of an original openness of being to the world a silent exposure to what is external to it preceding language logic and any form of representation Three central dimensions of experience can thus be explored on the basis of this primordial structure aesthetics through music as an immediate access to the articulation between the sensible and the significant ethics as a fundamental questioning of the relationship to otherness that precedes the normative concerns of morality and identity conceived as a dynamic dialectic between openness and the gathering of being These domains are not separate fields but each in its own mode expresses the structure of a radical dualism the condition for any formal production any act of thought and any possibility of understanding the world Underlying it all is an attempt to reconcile science and humanism through a philosophy of form freedom and spirit (XII, 694 p.) H.
