South African Defence Force Form Year 2015:

Researching the Military Helena Carreiras, Celso Castro, Sabina Frederic, 2016-03-02 Researching the Military focuses on the experiences of researchers who study the military around the world. It explores the historical, social, institutional, and personal factors that frame research and scrutinize the way knowledge in this area impacts society and policy. More than merely analyzing research experiences yet necessarily including them, it is also about the experiences of researchers, their position with regard to the object of their studies, the institutional context where they work, and the way their research impacts the academic and policy-making fields in the respective countries. The common theme to the various chapters is reflexivity, a conscious effort at addressing the conditions of research and the position of the researcher and the research participants in that interface. By collecting diverse experiences of researchers from across the world, this volume aims to enhance reflexivity in the field of military studies and to encourage the exchange of knowledge between the academic field and the military arena. This book will be of much interest to students of military studies, research methods, sociology, social anthropology, and security studies in general. The World Factbook 2016-17 Government Publications Office, 2016-08-18 The World Factbook provides information on the history, people, government, economy, geography, communications, transportation, military, and transnational issues for 267 world entities. The World Factbook Reference tab includes maps of the major world regions as well as Flags of the World, a Physical Map of the World, a Political Map of the World, a World Oceans map, and a Standard Time Zones of the World map. This annual edition also covers information about country profiles and country comparisons. It would make an excellent and useful resource for world geography, research papers, and international relations classes that may study the people, history, and communication patterns of other countries. 'Africa Forms the Key' Suryakanthie Chetty, 2021-01-04 This book examines the work of prominent South African geologist Alex Du Toit as a means of understanding the debate around continental drift, both in the segregation era South Africa and internationally. It contextualises Du Toit's work within a particularly formative period of South African science, from the paleoanthropological discoveries that sparked debates about the origins of humankind to Jan Smuts' own theory of holism. Beyond South African scientific discoveries, the book sets Du Toit's work against a backdrop of ideological struggles over space, both domestically in terms of segregation and nationalism, as well as internationally as South Africa sought to assert its position within the Commonwealth. These debates were embodied by Du Toit's work on the theory of continental drift, which put Africa and South Africa at the centre geologically and geographically. The author also focuses on the divisions in geology caused by drift theory, tracing the vigorous intellectual debate and dissent indicative of the ideological milieu within which scientific thought is constructed. It traces the history of continental drift from its inception in the nineteenth century and later work of Alfred Wegener, which was both elaborated upon and substantiated by Du Toit. The study further focuses on Du Toit's research on continental drift in South Africa and South America, and the geological fossil and climatological evidence used to bolster this

Replicating & Reproducing Policing Research Khadija Monk, Jacek Koziarski, 2024-04-30 This book addresses the need for policing scholarship to strengthen its empirical cumulative knowledge base by replicating and reproducing earlier studies The chapters in this volume advance policing research by replicating and reproducing earlier studies investigating the generalizability of research findings and making data and research methods available to other researchers to encourage scientific exploration of previous research findings Each chapter addresses important scientific goals of validity reliability and generalizability which build our cumulative knowledge of what is known in policing research ultimately informing policymaking The book offers insights into why replicating and reproducing policing scholarship is critical from emphasizing the importance of making data and study material publicly available to facilitate replications and reproductions to reproducing studies in new contexts and cautioning against making policy making decisions based on studies that have not been replicated This volume highlights the immense value in shifting researchers priorities even slightly to focus less so on originality and innovation to make room for replications and reproductions thereby shedding light on how true empirical knowledge on policing and police practice is dependent on it This book was originally published as a special issue of Police Practice and Research
