Changes to the South African Family Practice Journal

At the end of 2018 the contract with Medpharm to publish the South African Family Practice Journal was up for renewal. Over the last five years Medpharm has enabled the journal to obtain accreditation with the US National Library of Medicine and to be searchable on PubMed. This has raised the visibility and accessibility of the journal considerably, particularly as the original research is published on an international platform managed by Taylor and Francis.

While we have renewed our contract with Medpharm to publish the journal, we have also asked for some changes. This is the official journal of the South African Academy of Family Physicians and members benefit from receiving the hardcopy of the journal in the post. In future the hardcopy of the journal will only be posted to members of the Academy. If you are not a member of the Academy then you may find that you no longer receive the journal. In order to continue receiving the hardcopy of the journal you can join the Academy as a full or associate member: <http://saafp.org/index.php/2011-12-09-13-16-10/membership-categories>

The journal will remain freely available on-line as an open-access resource to all. In future, however, we have asked Medpharm to publish all the content on the Taylor and Francis website so that one only needs to engage with one portal. The Medpharm website will simply re-direct readers to the Taylor and Francis website.

Apart from original research, the journal is also committed to providing continuing professional development. As we go forward we hope to align our CPD topics even more closely to the learning needs of our members. Please let us know if you have any suggestions for topics that should be addressed. Members of the Academy will continue to receive access to Continuing Education Units to meet all their annual needs via www.ecpd.co.za

Over this same period our long standing editor, Professor Gboyega Ogunbanjo, has stepped down as Editor-in-Chief. The Academy is grateful to him for his guidance, commitment and leadership of the journal over many years.

The new Editor-in-Chief will be Dr Klaus von Pressentin. Dr von Pressentin is a family physician at Mossel Bay District Hospital, he has a PhD in Family Medicine and has experience as the Assistant Editor of the African Journal of Primary Health Care and Family Medicine. We have also appointed Prof Indiran Govender as Assistant Editor. Prof Govender is an academic family physician attached to Sefako Makgatho Health Sciences University with a good track record of research publication, peer review and examination.

The term of office for the Editorial Board also came to an end in 2018 and the new Editors will also appoint a new Editorial Board to offer support and strategic direction.

So, many changes, but all designed to maintain and improve the academic standards of the journal and the value of the journal to members of the Academy.

Before signing off I would also like to draw your attention to the annual National Family Practitioner Conference that will be held in Midrand from 23–25 August 2019. The theme of this year's conference will be "The primary healthcare team: Roles and alignment to the ideals of the NHI". In addition to a focus on implementation of national health insurance, the conference will provide an opportunity for continuing professional development, engagement with the latest research, debate and discussion as well as special interest groups such as our registrars and clinical trainers. South African Family Practice Journal:

Choice and conscience: Lessons from South Africa for a global debate Satang Nabaneh, 2023-11-08 Choice and Conscience offers a fresh and insightful perspective on the highly debated issue of conscientious objection in abortion care. Satang Nabaneh's socio-legal approach, which draws on both traditional legal scholarship and African feminist intellectual traditions, provides a nuanced understanding of how legal norms construct and maintain power relations. By focusing on the experiences of nurses in South Africa, Nabaneh explores the complexities of conscience, discretionary power, and socio-cultural and political factors that influence nurses' decisions about whether or not to conscientiously object. In the wake of the recent rollback of abortion rights in the United States and the trend towards liberalisation within the African region, Nabaneh provides an important African perspective on how the international human rights framework should strike a contextual balance between freedom of conscience and ensuring access to abortion. Choice and Conscience will interest lawyers, activists, policymakers, scholars, and students exploring the dynamic intersections of law, healthcare, and gender politics. Choice and Conscience stands as a significant and valuable addition to the ongoing global scholarship on this critical issue. It underscores the vital concept that intersectionality should occupy a central place in our examination of how various local contexts give rise to layered forms of privilege and disadvantage. Dr Tlaleng Mofokeng, UN Special Rapporteur on the right to health. Nabaneh's study of law in action zeroes in on South African nurses' gatekeepers who often object to the practice for reasons of conscience. Her interviews of these nurses and her analysis complicate our understanding of challenges to abortion access, providing lessons applicable not only to South Africa and other African countries but everywhere where there is a gap between formal law and its application. Mindy Jane Roseman, JD, PhD, Yale Law School. Written from an African feminist perspective, this book offers fresh insights into our understanding of the intersection between politics, mobilisation of discretionary power, and the exercise of conscientious objection to abortion by mid-level providers. Charles Ngwenya, Professor of Law, Centre for Human Rights, University of Pretoria. This book offers powerful insights about how informal and background norms in health systems function, constrain, or enable reproductive justice. Focusing on conscientious objection to abortion by nurses, including midwives in South Africa, Nabaneh sketches the importance of a feminist analysis that is situated in Africans' lived realities. Alicia Ely Yamin, Harvard University.

International Perspectives on Primary Care Research Felicity Goodyear-Smith, Bob Mash, 2017-04-28 International Perspectives on Primary Care Research examines how the evidence base from primary care research can strengthen health care services and delivery, tackle the growing burden of disease, improve quality and safety, and increase a person-centred focus to health care. Complexities and challenges in preventive audiology Katijah Khoza-Shangase, 2023-03-01. The success of any preventive healthcare programme is reliant on a functional healthcare system. Within this system of care, healthcare professionals including audiologists can only practice safely and effectively if they possess an appreciation of the complexities and challenges that exist in that context. Where healthcare professionals have such awareness that aids them to recognise opportunities for errors that can cause patients harm and where they take steps to prevent these mistakes is where preventive audiology is positioned. This edited book, Complexities and Challenges in Preventive Audiology: An African Perspective, is a sequel to another book by the current editor titled Preventive Audiology: An African Perspective. While in the process of editing that book, the editor identified that a lacuna of contextually relevant collation of evidence on complexities and challenges faced by the field of audiology within the African context in implementing preventive audiology existed. The goal of this book is to delve into these complexities and challenges for various key areas in audiology. All chapters deliberate on evidence-based perspectives grounded in the African context with deliberate and preferential reliance on contemporary, locally relevant evidence that allows for accurate reflection of current complexities and challenges in ear and hearing care delivery within the African context. Contributors were encouraged to be as comprehensive as possible in their review of the literature within the African context where available. Complexities brought about by context such as cultural and linguistic diversity as well as traditional and alternative healthcare on preventive audiology within the South African context are also covered in this book. As each chapter explores prevailing complexities and challenges, potential solutions and recommendations for all challenges identified are also offered, having carefully and deliberately engaged with local evidence, local context and local policies and regulations to ensure an Afrocentric contribution to the world of evidence. All chapters in the book have a goal of ensuring that increased efforts are directed towards the provision of clinical services that are driven through best practice by contextually relevant and responsive evidence.

The International Handbook on Aging Erdman P. Palmore, Frank Whittington, Suzanne Kunkel, 2009-10-27 The United Nations World Assembly on Aging has made advancing health and well-being into old age a worldwide call for action. And this text at hand shows us what researchers worldwide are doing to answer that call. Here three of America's most esteemed experts on aging lead a global team of contributors, each an expert in his or her country, to show us what the top challenges of each nation are and what top research is being done there to meet those. While we cannot predict with absolute certainty all of the issues that will arise over the next 20 years, we can anticipate some and we must start now to prepare for these challenges. An expert from the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services warned at a recent UN World Assembly on Aging: Needed response to the global population shift is not just the responsibility of governments but will be a product of wise long-term decisions made by individuals and societies, she explained. In most nations globally, populations are graying, and the number of people aged 65 and older is vastly increasing, creating a larger segment of senior citizens than the world has ever before seen. Across human history, the elderly accounted for no more than 3 percent of the world population. By the year 2030, the elderly are expected to make up about 25 percent of the world population. And while longevity is of course seen as a great success, longer lifespan for such masses also creates dilemmas. For example, the incidence of dementia has already increased significantly, with an 11-fold increase in people aged 65 and older in the US since the turn of the century, and a similar increase in aged people in Scotland. Researchers there are scrambling to find treatments for what they expect will be a 75 percent increase in dementia over the next 25 years. Chronic diseases that come with aging are already taxing health care systems in the US and around the world. To Japan, with most experts aware their current health systems would be overrun and lack enough staff and facilities to handle the needs of an elderly population multiplying largely in the coming two decades. Increases in psychological issues such as dealing with the depression often striking aged people are impending too, as are social issues such as how families and public policies will deal
