High in the branches of a tree, a busy animal is looking for food. The treetop forager is a tree kangaroo, an animal that looks a lot like the ground-dwelling kangaroos of Australia but which spends its life climbing and leaping through the treetops. Filled with information perfectly suited to the abilities and interests of its second-grade audience, this colorful fact-filled volume introduces young readers to the everyday life of a tree kangaroo. How is the animal's body adapted to its treetop life? What does the tree kangaroo eat? How does it move from tree to tree? And how do female tree kangaroos keep their tiny joeys safe as they leap through the rain forest, sometimes jumping the length of a school bus? Throughout the book, readers are encouraged to make scientific observations based on the book's images and answer questions about tree kangaroo's lives and physical characteristics. This innovative approach to teaching about wild animals gives young scientists the chance not only to read and learn the facts but also to develop their own powers of observation and critical thinking.

What does the bird eat? How does it find its food? Where do woodpeckers make their nests? And how do woodpeckers care for their chicks? Throughout the book, readers are encouraged to make scientific observations based on the book's images and answer questions about the lives and physical characteristics of these busy birds. This innovative approach to teaching about wild animals gives young scientists the chance not only to read and learn the facts but also to develop their own powers of observation and critical thinking.

Extraordinary Women Conservationists of Washington Dee Arntz, 2015-01-12 Courageous women are to thank for many of Washington's environmental conservation successes. Bonnie Phillips, Melanie Rowland, and Helen Engle battled harmful timber cutting. Polly Dyer and Emily Haig worked to expand Olympic National Park and organized efforts to establish North Cascades National Park. Women helped create the Washington Environmental Council and Washington Conservation Voters. As a state representative, Jolene Unsoeld led the fight against Boeing and other major corporations to pass the state Model Toxics Control Act. Author and Washington conservationist Dee Arntz recounts these important stories and many others showing that the legacy of Washington's female conservationists is nothing short of extraordinary.
