Developing Mathematical Thinking Jonathan D. Katz, 2014-07-07 In this country we have done a poor job of helping students come to see the wonder beauty and power of mathematics Standards can be brought into the picture but unless we think about what it means to truly engage students in mathematics we will continue to be unsuccessful The goal of this book is to begin to change the way students experience mathematics in the middle and high school classrooms In this book you will find a theoretical basis for this approach to teaching mathematics multiple guides and questions for teachers to think about in relation to their everyday teaching and over 30 examples of problems lessons tasks and projects that have been used effectively with urban students

Race, Empire, and English Language Teaching Suhanthi Motha, 2014-04-18 This timely book takes a critical look at the teaching of English showing how language is used to create hierarchies of cultural privilege in public schools across the country Motha closely examines the work of four ESL teachers who developed anti racist pedagogical practices during their first year of teaching Their experiences and those of their students provide a compelling account of how new teachers might gain agency for culturally responsive teaching in spite of school cultures that often discourage such approaches The author combines current research with her original analyses to shed light on real classroom situations faced by teachers of linguistically diverse populations This book will help pre and in service teachers to think about such challenges as differential achievement between language learners and native speakers about hierarchies of languages and language varieties about the difference between an accent identity and an incorrect pronunciation and about the use of students first languages in English classes This resource offers implications for classroom teaching educational policy school leadership and teacher preparation including reflection questions at the end of each chapter
