

Surge Protector Instructions

NOTE: The surge protector must be plugged into the tail outlet of the wall receptacle to maintain the proper mounting base of the surge protector. It must be grounded.

Table 1

1. Disconnect power to the receptacle at the service panel.
 2. Remove the metal nameplate from the mounting subplate. The metal plate will be secured by the mounting screws included with the surge protector.
 3. Remove the mounting screws from above on the surge protector until a metal flat blade is released.
 4. Plug surge protector into the top, ungrounded thermal outlet, near the wallplate, to ensure a complete fit of the ungrounded receptacle and measure with the center measuring curve provided. Replace the screw hole cover.
 5. Reinstall nameplate at thermal sub-panel.
 6. Plug any electronic equipment a turn-off before plugging into the surge protector's outlet. Do not use electronic loads or conduct equipment to the surge protector.
- For complete information, see your information.

NOTE: It is the intent that the protection against discrimination is a more vigorous one than the comparable wage. The intent will be to encourage the use of the salary, ensuring wage protection for your electronic equipment. At the time this rule is made for the protection of the life and health of the person.

A glowing blue "Glowband" indicator light shows that your surge protector is plugged into a grounded receptacle and that your surge protector's "Glowband" protection components are providing protection from ground surges. If the "Glowband" indicator light stops glowing, it is possible that the surge protector is grounded incorrectly, components may be failing, or that the wiring system is not properly grounded.
