Adolescent Psychiatry Leo Sher, Joav Merrick, 2013-10-14 Psychiatric disorders in adolescents are an important social problem which is relevant to almost all healthcare professionals According to the results of The National Comorbidity Survey Adolescent Supplement NCS A the lifetime prevalence of anxiety behavior mood and substance use disorders among adolescents was 31 9% 19 1% 14 3% and 11 4% respectively Approximately 40% of participants in this survey with one class of disorder also met criteria for another class of lifetime disorder Comorbidity is increasingly recognized as a key feature of mental disorders among adolescents Female adolescents are more likely than males to have mood and anxiety disorders but less likely to have behavioral and substance use disorders. Regretfully, medical professionals are not sufficiently trained about adolescent psychiatric disorders. For example, primary care providers correctly identify less than a fourth of youth with a depressive or anxiety disorder. Also, many clinicians underestimate the importance of the problem of adolescent psychiatric illnesses and suicidal behavior. Lack of skilled medical providers impedes the delivery of needed services to adolescents with mental health issues. This coupled with a lag in the ability of primary health care services to incorporate psychiatric interventions and a failure of public health initiatives to pay attention to adolescent mental health problems has led to continuing gaps in care over decades despite the public pronouncements of needs. In this book, you will find relevant information for health professionals since we believe that the mental health of adolescents is essential for sustaining healthy and productive societies.

Understanding Vulnerability to Major Depressive Disorder Ali Saffet Gonul, Cagdas Eker, Thomas Frodl, Yigit Erdogan, Birce Begüm

Burhanoglu, 2025-09-19 Major depressive disorder (MDD) starts at an early age and is associated with recurrent episodes. It affects more than 5% of the general population and is associated with significant suicide risk. This lifelong illness significantly impacts the patient and their relatives beyond its economic losses. Although we have different treatment options for MDD, the remission rate is almost 50% in the long term with multiple treatment trials. Therefore, one of the ultimate goals of psychiatry is to identify high-risk individuals and use preventive measures before the pre-disease pathophysiology progresses to illness. Although some studies suggest high-risk individuals for MDD have similar biochemical and neuroimaging findings to individuals with depression, others suggest different patterns of the disease process in high-risk individuals. Focusing on high-risk factors in high-risk populations therefore also allows for the identification of factors that promote resilience to depression in those individuals. The objective of this Research Topic is to establish a dedicated platform addressing high-risk studies related to major depressive disorders (MDD) and related conditions. Our primary focus is on the exploration and characterization of individuals with high risk for MDD. We invite contributions in the form of research articles, reviews, and meta-analyses spanning various domains including epidemiology, neuroimaging, genetics, and related fields. While no tailored treatments currently exist for high-risk groups, our intention is to delve into potential psychotherapeutic interventions.
