Authors and Texts in Byzantium Aleksandr Petrovich Kazhdan, 1993 Professor Kazhdan's approach to the study of Byzantine texts is to see them as works created by humans for humans and about humans, not as a system of imitative exercises on ancient or biblical topics and styles. When authors reused or adapted older models, he would ask why they did that and argues that in this opposition of traditional language and new content lies one of the keys to the understanding of Byzantine culture. This approach does not exclude the use of the texts as sources for what happened and these articles demonstrate just how much can with care be extracted or deduced. However, his major aim has been to analyse the historical background, the social ideas and artistic approaches of Byzantine authors as revealed in what they wrote. These authors include literary figures and there are important studies on the intellectual culture of the later Empire, but the emphasis is more particularly on the often anonymous writers of saints' lives and the 8th-10th centuries. The volume ends with an important section of additional notes and references and a detailed index.

L'approche du professeur Kazhdan l'étude des textes byzantins est de les considérer en tant qu'œuvres créées par des êtres humains au sujet d'êtres humains et s'adressant des êtres humains et non en tant que modes d'exercices sur des thèmes et des styles anciens ou bibliques. Lorsque des auteurs réadaptaient ou réutilisaient d'anciens modèles, le professeur Kazhdan n'a jamais manqué de questionner la chose et d'affirmer qu'il y existe au travers de cette opposition du langage traditionnel un nouveau contenu, une des clefs permettant de comprendre la culture byzantine. Ceci n'exclue pas l'utilisation des textes en tant que sources factuelles et ces articles montrent comment il est possible avec soin d'en extraire. Son propos a cependant tout d'abord d'analyser les contextes historiques, les idées sociales et les approches artistiques des auteurs byzantins. Parmi ceux-ci se trouvent des personnages littéraires et il y a d'importantes études sur la culture intellectuelle du Bas Empire, mais l'accent est surtout mis sur les auteurs les plus souvent anonymes, de vies des saints et sur la prière allant du 8^e au 10^e siècle. Le volume se termine par une importante section de notes additionnelles ainsi qu'un index détaillé.
