

Domestic Violence Thesis Statement

Examples

Domestic violence is defined as consistently abusive behavior by one person against another involved in an intimate relationship, such as dating, marriage, etc. What constitutes domestic abuse may vary within different legal frameworks, but generally, any form of emotional, physical or sexual abuse can be construed as domestic violence. Domestic violence is alternatively also called spousal abuse, battering, and family violence.

Domestic violence is recognized as a criminal offense in almost all countries across the world. Yet, it remains a common occurrence, almost on a pandemic scale, that often goes unpunished because of the hidden nature of abuse by one partner against another in an intimate relationship. Therefore, most attempts to counter and control domestic violence are directed towards raising awareness of this crime, and changing commonly held perceptions against it.

Domestic violence isn't limited to physical abuse alone and incorporates sexual, emotional and mental abuse as well. Physical abuse, though, is the most common form of domestic violence and includes a pattern of hitting, battery, punching, kicking, burning, etc. though this may vary from state to
