Thesis On Corporate Governance:

Reassessing the convergence thesis. An analysis of the 2018/2019 Corporate Governance Codes of the United Kingdom and Germany Thomas Böhm, 2019-11-08 Doctoral Thesis Dissertation from the year 2019 in the subject Law Civil Private Trade Anti Trust Law Business Law grade A University of Edinburgh Edinburgh Law School course Dissertation in Law language English abstract This paper presents a reassessing the convergence thesis It takes the adoption of the new German Corporate Governance Code 2019 GCGC as an opportunity to verify the thesis whether signs of convergence of contrasting corporate governance systems towards a single model are evident For this purpose a comparative analysis of the GCGC and the UK Corporate Governance Code 2018 UKCGC is conducted The UKCGC and the GCGC originate from competing corporate governance systems the UK enlightened shareholder value model and the German stakeholder model so the two Codes are ideally suited for a comparative analysis to verify the convergence thesis It shows that the advancing globalization has generally contributed to a shift towards an Anglo American corporate governance pattern in European countries Convergence is also attributable to the harmonization of national laws through EU legislation The comparative analysis of the UKCGC and the GCGC reveals broad signs of convergence with a large number of similar corporate governance mechanisms and provisions Nevertheless there are still region specific differences in the Corporate Governance Codes that can be traced to the underlying corporate governance philosophy However board practice demonstrates that the structural differences between the two corporate governance systems are blurring The comparative analysis also illustrates that the Corporate Governance Codes are converging from both sides Convergence in Corporate Governance Keshav Dahiya, 2006 Corporate Governance - development of a model for enterprises in China, 2003 Capital Structure and Corporate Governance Lorenzo Sasso, 2013-08-01 Despite a clear distinction in law between equity and debt the results of such a categorization can be misleading The growth of financial innovation in recent decades necessitates the allocation of control and cash flow rights in a way that diverges from the classic understanding Some of the financial instruments issued by companies so called hybrid instruments fall into a grey area between debt and equity forcing regulators to look beyond the legal form of an instrument to its practical substance This innovative study by emphasizing the agency relations and the property law claims embedded in the use of such unconventional instruments analyses and discusses the governance regulation of hybrids in a way that is primarily functional departing from more common approaches that focus on tax advantages and internal corporate control The author assesses the role of hybrid instruments in the modern company unveiling the costs and benefits of issuing these securities recognizing and categorizing the different problem fields in which hybrids play an important role and identifying legal and contracting solutions to governance and finance problems The full scale analysis compares the U K law dealing with hybrid instruments with the corresponding law of the most relevant U S jurisdictions in relation to company law The following issues among many others are raised decisions under uncertainty when the risks of opportunism of the parties is very high contract incompleteness and ex post conflicts protection of convertible bondholders in mergers and acquisitions and in assets disposal use of convertible bonds to reorganise and restructure a firm timing of the conversion and the issuer's call option majority minority conflict in venture capital financing duty of loyalty fiduciary duties to preference shareholders and financial contract design for controlling the board's power in exit events Throughout the analysis includes discussion comparison and evaluation of statutory provisions existing legal standards and strategies for protection It is unlikely that a more thorough or informative account exists of the complex regulatory problems created by hybrid financial instruments and of the different ways in which regulatory regimes have responded to the problems they raise Because business parties in these jurisdictions have a lot of scope and a strong incentive to contract for their rights this book will also be of uncommon practical value to corporate counsel and financial regulators as well as to interested academics

[microform] : Democracy and Accountability for Corporate Governance Activity by Pension Funds Ronald B. (Ronald Book) Davis, 2004 Pension funds in North America and the United Kingdom are substantial shareholders in corporations For the most part these shares are the result of the investment of pension plan contributions made by or on behalf of the sponsoring employer's employees As substantial shareholders pension funds have the ability to exercise voting and other rights attached to their shares to influence or control certain corporate decisions Collectively pension funds often have legal or de facto voting control of the corporation My thesis is that the corporate governance decisions of pension funds ought to be made by the beneficiaries of those funds and or their directly elected representatives because the beneficiaries interests are not being served by the present decision making structure The present structure rests these decisions in the hands of the employer s management or those answerable directly to that management The investment and corporate governance decisions of pension fund managers affect the interests of the beneficiaries through their impact on their future retirement security and the social economic and political environment in which they will live Thus the grant of this power to pension fund managers by widely dispersed beneficiaries raises issues of legitimacy and the legitimate use of this power and in particular how the interests of the beneficiaries and the society in which they live are defined and taken account of in the decision making process My claim is that the present system fails to adequately define these interests and take them into account because it does not provide appropriate mechanisms of accountability to the beneficiaries Both normative and prudential grounds are offered for my thesis The normative grounds are rooted in the collectivization of property in the pension fund allowing beneficiaries to democratically determine the process by which their bonds with the community will be defined and agreed on in the context of corporate policy The prudential grounds combine two factors first fund managers conflicts of interest where corporate governance activity critical of corporate management is involved second the increasingly contested connections between long term shareholder interests or the fundamental value of a corporation and share prices in securities markets These factors provide justification for treating a pension fund s corporate governance policies as matters for democratic determination by the beneficiaries rather than as matters of managerial expertise especially since that expertise can also be provided as advice After reviewing the implications of the thesis for pension and trust law corporation law and securities regulation the thesis presents a number of recommendations for changes in the law in order to empower pension plan beneficiaries with respect to the corporate governance policy of their pension fund
