

REG HENRY

A man with a mustache, wearing a light blue button-down shirt and a red patterned tie, stands in a dark room. He is smiling and has his hands on his hips. In the background, there is a green light source with the number '12' on it, and a newspaper is visible on the right. The overall atmosphere is mysterious and dramatic.

The Wry World Of Reg Henry:

The Wry World of Reg Henry Reg Henry, 2014-11-26 Reg Henry is an award winning syndicated columnist for the Pittsburgh Post Gazette His work has appeared in more than 150 newspapers in the United States causing laughter and at times dismay depending on the reader's taste for his dry sense of humor A taste by the way that can sometime be enhanced by an adult beverage According to Henry his real job at the PG has been composing serious editorials on subjects so boring that police negotiators read them to hostage takers to make them give up But his weekly column he considers a vacation from his regular work Having grown up in Australia and lived and worked in England for a time Henry wrote this about the mysteries of Pittsburgh When I first arrived in Pittsburgh signs outside seedy establishments on Liberty Avenue advertised Live Nudes which was a bit creepy because that suggested the possible existence of dead nudes On attending his son's sporting events he put forth My only regret was that I did not go to every game Fortunately Hamilton College is only 396 miles from Pittsburgh and it would be an easy drive if it weren't for the regular blizzards and torrential rain in Erie and New York Reg Henry's columns range from the joys of drinking Guinness to the perils of being a Carnegie Mellon University braniac living in gender neutral on campus housing His take is always fresh if a bit twisted holding up an odd little mirror to the human condition In Iraq we are told hitting someone with a shoe is among the worst of insults In our culture the worst insult to the national intelligence is to fail to kick someone out of office when he or she richly deserves it Love in the Late

Edition Reg Henry, 2020-09-12 Love in the Late Edition is a story about a man who retires with his wife to an idyllic retirement community in California but is very soon left tragically alone Alistair Brown is originally from Australia but has spent decades working in America once as the editor of the local newspaper nearby which is why he and his wife have come back to beautiful Carmelito to retire Now suddenly blindsided by fate Alistair knows he must somehow find a new purpose in his life which at first he struggles to do often comically Written in the style of an autobiography Alistair's story is both funny and sad It is full of compelling characters and memorable incidents in a world unto itself with its own attitudes and customs a world that becomes threatened and in need of saving Alistair who finds fulfilment by using his old journalistic talents as editor of the community's newsletter is able to help sound the alarm Then something else surprising and good happens when he least expects it Love in the Late Edition is part love story part homage to the newspaper business part ode to friendship But most of all it is an affirmation that while there is life there is hope and that even in the evening of our lives we can find happiness with a fresh reason for living
