

Friction is a force that impedes motion by its resistive nature. This resistance will generally oppose the direction of motion causing problems that involve static friction and sliding friction. Most friction is the result. Friction may actually be an aid moving. Sliding friction is the friction between two sliding surfaces.

1. Calculating Friction

In the following figure, a force F is applied to an object. This force is applied to the distance $F \cdot d$, which gives:

Let's say the normal force, F_N , is equal to the force pressing the moving surface together.

Let's say the equation for sliding friction:

(Equation)

$$\text{Friction Force (N)} = \mu F_N \quad \text{Coefficient of Friction} \quad \text{Normal Force (N)}$$

In this equation:

- 1) F_N is force of normal.
- 2) μ is coefficient of friction.
- 3) F_f is friction force acting opposite to F .

Example: A car is sliding along on a surface at angle 30 degrees. The coefficient of friction is 0.2. How much frictional resistance does the block sliding?

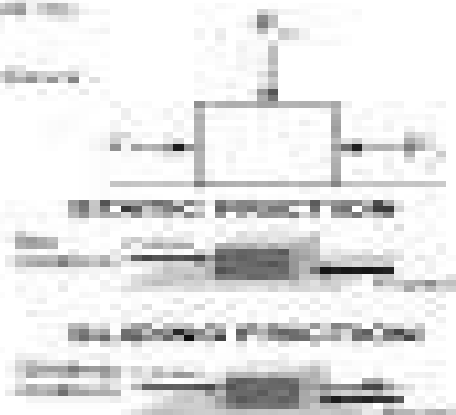

$$\begin{aligned} F_f &= \mu F_N \\ F_f &= 0.2 \cdot 100 \text{ N} \\ F_f &= 20 \text{ N} \end{aligned}$$

In this example, F must be greater than 20 N.

2. Static Friction

Static friction prevents and stops your car from moving in the direction you want. When this _____ amount of force is needed? This is the static while the car is stationary.

- 1) A force is applied to the car, pushing the car along the surface of a road. The car is pushed forward with 100 N force. How much static friction is the car in 10? How much force is applied to the car pushing the car forward?
