

A close-up, high-angle photograph of a microcontroller chip mounted on a green printed circuit board (PCB). The chip is a square, dark grey component with numerous gold-colored pins visible along its edges. The PCB is densely populated with various electronic components, including smaller integrated circuits, resistors, and capacitors. A bright, warm light source, possibly a lamp, is positioned above the chip, creating a strong lens flare and illuminating the scene with a golden-yellow glow. The background is dark and out of focus.
