Understanding Teacher Education in Contentious Times Catherine Cornbleth, 2013-10-30 Understanding Teacher Education in Contentious Times examines how public professional and private or corporate agencies operate to shape teacher education and possibilities for its improvement Teacher education programs particularly those leading to state certification or licensure are influenced not only by state regulations but also by required review and accreditation by an outside agency such as the National Council for the Accreditation of Teacher Education and are subject to various contextual pressures such as the cultures of the institutions that host them and their surrounding communities their potential student and employer markets strong individuals professional organizations history or tradition and increasingly external usually privately funded special interest corporations such as the National Council on Teacher Quality Unique among books on teacher education this volume interweaves in historical context including emerging trends the complex contexts in which practice and reform efforts take place and are supported or impeded

Opportunities and Challenges at Historically Black Colleges and Universities M. Gasman, F. Commodore, 2014-11-25 In this edited collection the authors grapple with both the strengths and challenges that HBCUs face as the nation's demographics change from their place in American society and growing diversity on HBCU campuses to class and elitism issues to study abroad and honors programs

Place, Not Race Sheryll Cashin, 2014-05-06 From a nationally recognized expert a fresh and original argument for bettering affirmative action Race based affirmative action had been declining as a factor in university admissions even before the recent spate of related cases arrived at the Supreme Court Since Ward Connerly kickstarted a state by state political mobilization against affirmative action in the mid 1990s the percentage of four year public colleges that consider racial or ethnic status in admissions has fallen from 60 percent to 35 percent Only 45 percent of private colleges still explicitly consider race with elite schools more likely to do so although they too have retreated For law professor and civil rights activist Sheryll Cashin this isn't entirely bad news because as she argues affirmative action as currently practiced does little to help disadvantaged people The truly disadvantaged black and brown children trapped in high poverty environs are not getting the quality schooling they need in part because backlash and wedge politics undermine any possibility for common sense public policies Using place instead of race in diversity programming she writes will better amend the structural disadvantages endured by many children of color while enhancing the possibility that we might one day move past the racial resentment that affirmative action engenders In Place Not Race Cashin reimagines affirmative action and champions place based policies arguing that college applicants who have thrived despite exposure to neighborhood or school poverty are deserving of special consideration Those blessed to have come of age in poverty free havens are not Sixty years since the historic decision we re undoubtedly far from meeting the promise of Brown v Board of Education but Cashin offers a new framework for true inclusion for the millions of children who live separate and unequal lives Her proposals include making standardized tests optional replacing merit based financial aid with need based financial aid and recruiting high achieving students from overlooked places among other steps that encourage cross racial alliances and social mobility A call for action toward the long overdue promise of equality Place Not Race persuasively shows how the social costs of racial preferences actually outweigh any of the marginal benefits when effective race neutral alternatives are available

Failing Law Schools Brian Z.

Tamanaha,2012-06-15 On the surface law schools today are thriving Enrollments are on the rise and their resources are often the envy of every other university department Law professors are among the highest paid and play key roles as public intellectuals advisers and government officials Yet behind the flourishing facade law schools are failing abjectly Recent front page stories have detailed widespread dubious practices including false reporting of LSAT and GPA scores misleading placement reports and the fundamental failure to prepare graduates to enter the profession Addressing all these problems and more in a ringing critique is renowned legal scholar Brian Z Tamanaha Piece by piece Tamanaha lays out the how and why of the crisis and the likely consequences if the current trend continues The out of pocket cost of obtaining a law degree at many schools now approaches 200 000 The average law school graduate s debt is around 100 000 the highest it has ever been while the legal job market is the worst in decades with the scarce jobs offering starting salaries well below what is needed to handle such a debt load At the heart of the problem Tamanaha argues are the economic demands and competitive pressures on law schools driven by competition over U S News and World Report ranking When paired with a lack of regulatory oversight the work environment of professors the limited information available to prospective students and loan based tuition financing the result is a system that is fundamentally unsustainable Growing concern with the crisis in legal education has led to high profile coverage in the Wall Street Journal and the New York Times and many observers expect it soon will be the focus of congressional scrutiny Bringing to the table his years of experience from within the legal academy Tamanaha has provided the perfect resource for assessing what s wrong with law schools and figuring out how to fix them

Governance by Indicators Kevin Davis,Angelina Fisher,Benedict Kingsbury,Sally Engle Merry,2012-07-05 The use of indicators as a technique of global governance is increasing rapidly Major examples include the World Bank s Doing Business Indicators the World Bank s Good Governance and Rule of Law indicators the Millennium Development Goals and the indicators produced by Transparency International Human rights indicators are being developed in the UN and regional and advocacy organizations The burgeoning production and use of indicators has not however been accompanied by systematic comparative study of or reflection on the implications possibilities and pitfalls of this practice This book furthers the study of these issues by examining the production and history of indicators as well as relationships between the producers users subjects and audiences of indicators It also explores the creation use and effects of indicators as forms of knowledge and as mechanisms of making and implementing decisions in global governance Using insights from case studies empirical work and theoretical approaches from several disciplines the book identifies legal policy and normative implications of the production and use of indicators as a tool of global governance How to Write Anything John J. Garry Wade McGiboney, 2021-11-03 While there are hundreds of books on leadership no other book links epidemiological concepts to leadership Epidemiologists look for treatments by matching the determinants to the disease As such this book not only identifies leadership determinants but also matches research based antidotes to them at the end of each chapter The book includes over 550 references on leadership psychology epidemiology management systems theory and others as well as over 60 case studies analyzed to illustrate points about leadership and determinants Additionally each chapter includes a list of key terms and concepts discussion items and highlights of lessons learned At the end of the book there is a section on leadership and motivation theories and models as well as a section that provides leadership style surveys and assessments that can help readers identify their leadership style while also becoming aware of what changes in leadership style can improve workplace climate Crafting a Class Elizabeth A. Duffy, Idana Goldberg, 2014-07-14 Admissions and financial aid policies at liberal arts colleges have changed dramatically since 1955 Through the 1950s most colleges in the United States enrolled fewer than 1000 students nearly all of whom were white Few colleges were truly selective in their admissions they accepted most students who applied In the 1960s as the children of the baby boom reached college age and both federal and institutional financial aid programs expanded many more students began to apply to college For the first time liberal arts colleges were faced with an abundance of applicants which raised new questions What criteria would they use to select students How would they award financial aid The answers to these questions were shaped by financial and educational considerations as well as by the struggles for civil rights and gender equality that swept across the nation The colleges answers also proved crucial to their futures as the years since the mid 1970s have shown When the influx of baby boom students slowed colleges began to recruit aggressively in order to maintain their class sizes In the past decade financial aid has become another tool that colleges use to compete for the best students By tracing the development of competitive admission and financial aid policies at a selected group of liberal arts colleges Crafting a Class explores how institutional decisions reflect and respond to broad demographic economic political and social forces Elizabeth Duffy and Idana Goldberg closely studied sixteen liberal arts colleges in Massachusetts and Ohio At each college they not only collected empirical data on admissions enrollment and financial aid trends but they also examined archival materials and interviewed current and former administrators Duffy and Goldberg have produced an authoritative and highly readable account of some of the most important changes that have taken place in American higher education during the tumultuous decades since the mid 1950s Crafting a Class will interest all readers who are concerned with the past and future directions of higher education in the United States Originally published in 1997 The Princeton Legacy Library uses the latest print on demand technology to again make available previously out of print books from the distinguished backlist of Princeton University Press These editions preserve the original texts of these important books while presenting them in durable paperback and hardcover editions The
