Solution Manual Christopher Dougherty:

The Cost-effectiveness of National Training Systems in Developing Countries Christopher Dougherty, 1989 How the United States Would Fight China Franz-Stefan Gady, 2025-11 This is a detailed analysis of how the United States intends to fight a war against the People's Republic of China and why it risks strategic defeat based on its doctrine, force structure and general way of war. Franz-Stefan Gady contends that the US military's current approach to a potential war over Taiwan is flawed, relying heavily both on achieving rapid information superiority and on a decisive victory. This is unlikely to succeed and may increase the risk of nuclear escalation between the world's only genuine superpowers. A US-China war would more likely be characterized by prolonged attrition across multiple domains: cyber space, air, sea and land, a conflict for which America's military and society are ill-prepared. The US also lacks a viable blueprint: the military forces or the industrial capacity for a long war of attrition. This deficiency stems from a military culture prioritizing advanced technology over mass and the lack of political will or public readiness for the sacrifices such a conflict would require. Gady's research and analysis, both of the highest order, reveal the significant risk of strategic defeat for the United States in a potential conflict with China, whether in the 2020s or 2030s.
