Bond Girls Monica Germanà, 2019-10-03 Since Ursula Andress's white bikini debut in Dr. No, Bond Girls have been simultaneously celebrated as fashion icons and dismissed as eye candy. But the visual glamour of the women of James Bond reveals more than the sexual objectification of female beauty. Through the original joint perspectives of body and fashion, this exciting study throws a new subversive light on Bond Girls. Like Coco Chanel, fashion's eternal mademoiselle, these Girls are synonymous with an unconventional and dynamic femininity that does not play by the rules and refuses to sit still far from being the passive objects of the male gaze. Bond Girls' active bodies instead disrupt the stable frame of Bond's voyeurism. Starting off with an original re-assessment of the cultural roots of Bond's postwar masculinity, the book argues that Bond Girls emerge from masculine anxieties about the rise of female emancipation after the Second World War and persist in the present day. Displaying parallels with the politics of race and colonialism, such tensions appear through sartorial practices as diverse as exoticism, power dressing, and fetish wear, which reveal complex and often contradictory ideas about the patriarchal and imperial ideologies associated with Bond. Attention to costume, film, and gender theory makes Bond Girls: Body, Gender, and Fashion essential reading for students and scholars of fashion, media, and cultural studies, and for anyone with an interest in Bond.

Film as World Literature Robin Truth Goodman, 2025-10-16 Redefines the theoretical and thematic contents of world literature by considering it in connection with film. What gets lost when we understand film as essentially different from literature? What gets lost when we think them essentially the same? Does the constructed difference between literature and film also create social and political exclusions, exclusions that may exacerbate class struggle or exclusions of certain ways of thinking the future as different? Film as World Literature seeks to undo disciplines and disciplinarity; the division between film and literature indeed conceals the possibilities of world by bracketing out undisciplined parts. Contributors apply ideas of translatability and untranslatability not just as a linguistic exercise of transfers between language groups, cultures, and national origins, but also as an approach to media and transfers between media. Is film a visual acknowledgement that literary language is by definition multilingual, that is, is film a place where political conflicts, as Bakhtin observed, can be rendered visible? Chapters discuss film's relation to world literature not only by considering literary adaptations across nations, regions, languages, ideologies, and contexts, but also by exploring film's intersections with literary theory, narrative history, genre, and experimentation. Film as World Literature calls for recognition that while the category of world demands a radical defense in the face of risks to democracy, the world that literature and film combined bring forth must interrogate the conditions for a future politics of interaction, engagement, belonging, and difference.
