Multi-level management involvement is generally very important. Management interest must extend to all levels, starting with shareholders. It is useful for managers to think about the effects the company's strategy has on the other general ledger, shareholders and customers. In the general ledger, shareholders have the responsibility to the firm to get a proportion of the company's resources, and the firm is responsible to the shareholders. When the strategy has a high level of support, there are several other factors to focus on, such as customer satisfaction and value. Good agreement with others, the market and even the competitors, is an important part of the strategy-making process.
