Chapter 1: Introduction to Statistics

Section 1-2

1. Statistical significance is indicated when methods of statistics are used to reach a conclusion that some treatment or finding is effective, but common sense might suggest that the treatment or finding does not make enough of a difference to justify its use or to be practical. Yes, it is possible for a study to have statistical significance but not a practical significance.
2. If the source of the data can benefit from the results of the study, it is possible that an element of bias is introduced so that the results are favorable to the source.
3. A voluntary response sample is a sample in which the subjects themselves decide whether to be included in the study. A voluntary response sample is generally not suitable for a statistical study because the sample may have a bias resulting from participation by those with a special interest in the topic being studied.
4. Even if we conduct a study and find that there is a correlation, or association, between two variables, we cannot conclude that one of the variables is the cause of the other.
5. There does appear to be a potential to create a bias.
6. There does not appear to be a potential to create a bias.
7. There does not appear to be a potential to create a bias.
8. There does appear a potential to create a bias.
9. The sample is a voluntary response sample and is therefore flawed. 10. The sample is a voluntary response sample and is therefore flawed.
11. The sampling method appears to be sound.
12. The sampling method appears to be sound.
13. Because there is a 30% chance of getting such results with a diet that has no effect, it does not appear to have statistical significance, but the average loss of 45 pounds does appear to have practical significance.
14. Because there is only a 1% chance of getting the results by chance, the method appears to have a statistical significance. The result of 540 boys in 1000 births is above the approximately 50% rate expected by chance, but it does not appear to be high enough to have practical significance. Not many couples would bother with a procedure that raises the likelihood of a boy from 50% to 54%.
15. Because there is a 23% chance of getting such results with a program that has no effect, the program does not appear to have statistical significance. Because the success rate of 23% is not much better than the 20% rate that is typically expected with random guessing, the program does not appear to have practical significance.
16. Because there is a 25% chance of getting such results with a program that has no effect, the program does not appear to have statistical significance. Because the average increase is only 3 IQ point, the program does not appear to have practical significance.
17. The male and female pulse rates in the same column are not matched in any meaningful way. It does not make sense to use the difference between any of the pulse rates that are in the same column.
18. Yes, the source of the data is likely to be unbiased.
19. The data can be used to address the issue of whether males and females have pulse rates with the same average (mean) value.
