Higher Education at Risk Sandra Featherman, 2023-07-03 Sandra Featherman believes that colleges are in denial about the severity of the threats to the current model of higher education Based on her own experience as a president as a trustee and as a board member who has worked in private and public universities and on interviews with the presidents of major institutions she offers both a trenchant analysis of those threats and clear prescriptions about the painful but necessary decisions that colleges need to make to ensure they remain viable accessible and affordable and deliver a high quality education Sandra Featherman considers higher education to be at a game changing moment When markets don't function well as is the case with today's college marketplace with offerings that cost too much and return too little it opens the door to new types of suppliers who offer new ways of providing what students are looking for particularly the increasing cohort of mature working students In the face of new competitors for profit education companies technology start ups and foreign universities vying for international students trustees and senior level administrators are generally stuck in a traditional ethos and with decision making processes unsuited to these times They know what used to work and find it easier to follow old ways than to make the difficult transition to new ways of delivering education She lays out a strategy that emphasizes the centrality of students and how to provide them with the most effective learning environment that is clear eyed about focusing on the core missions and abandoning practices that constrain or impede them and that requires constant self monitoring to learn from and act upon what works She offers a blueprint for redesigning institutions for paring away what is unnecessary and cost ineffective and for adopting the best technologies all in the service of developing meaningful degree programs at an affordable price and widening access for under represented groups She ranges over the implications of budget decisions accreditation and MOOCs addresses government regulation and tuition costs presents promising new models and concludes with 11 key recommendations that should be heeded by all higher education administrators and trustees

this was not how things unfolded Instead much of the Welfare State had its vital support systems systematically undermined The public sector including the NHS is now on its knees Schools are buckling under multiple structural and budgetary pressures Councils even big ones are going broke Homelessness is rampant While Brexit the pandemic and war have no doubt impacted the economic health of the country previous austerity cuts left the UK less prepared to weather such extraordinary events With new commentary Austerity Bites 10 Years On assesses on the true scale of the damage these policies have inflicted on the country s most vulnerable groups public institutions and on the wider society It reflects on where we have been where we are now and what needs to happen next to undo the damage and avoid the same mistakes again

Heat, Dust, and Taxes Lex Fullarton, 2014-04-01 In Heat Dust and Taxes Lex Fullarton explores the taxpayer compliance behavior of blue collar workers in the Pilbara region of Western Australia in the 1990s who participated in mass marketed tax avoidance schemes at significantly higher rates than any other group of Australian taxpayers Investigating the motivational factors which might have caused that and providing a broad background and context Fullarton considers the physical economic and social environments of the Pilbara region highlighting the extremely harsh physical and social environments in which the locals live and work He examines the history of tax avoidance schemes in Australia from the 1970s to the 1990s to illustrate the development of mass marketed tax avoidance schemes Drawing on first hand interviews with the miners as well as archival and statistical material this rich and detailed study skillfully reveals the dominant motivational factors leading to the remarkable spread of tax avoidance schemes

Saving and Investment in the Twenty-First Century Carl Christian von Weizsäcker, Hagen M. Krämer, 2021-06-29 The economy of the 21st century in the OECD countries and in China is characterized by a new phenomenon the structural surplus of private savings in relation to private investment This is true even in a situation of prosperity and very low interest rates On the one hand this excess saving is due to people s increasing inclination to save in light of rising life expectancy driven by the desire to have sufficient assets in old age On the other hand the demand for capital is not increasing to the same extent so that investment is not keeping pace with the rising desire to save The resulting gap between the private desire for wealth and private investment can only be closed by increasing public debt This open access book offers a new capital theoretical perspective on the macroeconomic relationship between desired wealth and investment and it presents new empirical data on private wealth and its composition in the OECD plus China area The authors argue that a free economic and social order can only be stabilized if the wealth aspirations of individuals are met under conditions of price stability This is not possible without substantial net public debt A new way of thinking about the economy as a whole is required By way of an in depth theoretical and empirical analysis the book demonstrates this new way of thinking and describes the current challenges facing economic policy It will appeal to economists and students of economics who are interested in macroeconomic theory and its economic policy implications An impressive and convincing theoretical dive into the fundamentals behind secular stagnation with very strong implications for actual debt policy Public debt may be needed to improve welfare Olivier Blanchard Senior Fellow at the Peterson Institute for International Economics and Professor of Economics Emeritus at Massachusetts Institute of Technology MIT Chief Economist at the International Monetary Fund from 2008 to 2015 Saving and Investment in the Twenty First Century gives a wholly new perspective on macroeconomics Weizsäcker and Krüger describe a simple practical solution to the underemployment that has plagued Southern Europe for more than a decade George Akerlof Nobel Laureate in Economics 2001 Professor at the McCourt School of Public Policy at Georgetown University and Professor of Economics Emeritus at the University of California Berkeley This is a profound and original contribution that can help us to understand and act on the great issues of our times Nicholas Stern Grantham Research Institute on Climate Change and the Environment at the London School of Economics Author of the Stern Review Report on the Economics of Climate Change Chief Economist at the World Bank from 2000 to 2003
