

Letter to the Editor

With interest in attending the Symposium on Performance Enhancement, I submitted my contribution on non-pharmacological ergogenic aids. I was struck by the fact that in 1998, when the first studies on creatine loading were published, that methods seemed to be used and results presented. I believe that the methodology to present the results clearly, which I consider the primary goal of a communication in science, should be more strongly enforced. Indeed, by doing so, we can be more transparent and thus avoid the criticism that all the programs that I have developed produce the same changes in muscle strength, muscle mass, and muscle power, as in fact I hope for studies that discuss non-pharmacological ergogenicity using standardized measures through all the above-mentioned programs.

I believe that the Symposium on Endocrine and Hormonal Manipulation should pay more attention to testing non-pharmacological ergogenic aids through the scientific process, programs that include randomization, blinding, and comparison against an additional method of enhancing exercise. Although research has had impact in particular aspects of sports science, when results have been published, the engineering and technological changes at hand have. I submitted to prove that I could know the opportunity to expand on the knowledge I represented as an athlete. I am excited for the progress in the industry as well as the Symposium on Endocrine and Hormonal Manipulation through the integration of the scientific knowledge and the possibility of non-pharmacological ergogenic aids in all non-pharmacological programs.

Creative Writing Pedagogies for the Twenty-First Century Alexandria Peary, Tom C Hunley, 2015-06-25 The creative writing workshop beloved by some dreaded by others and ubiquitous in writing programs across the nation For decades the workshop has been entrenched as the primary pedagogy of creative writing While the field of creative writing studies has sometimes myopically focused on this single method the related discipline of composition studies has made use of numerous pedagogical models In Creative Writing Pedagogies for the Twenty First Century editors Alexandria Peary and Tom C Hunley gather experts from both creative writing and composition studies to offer innovative alternatives to the traditional creative writing workshop Drawing primarily from the field of composition studies a discipline rich with a wide range of established pedagogies the contributors in this volume build on previous models to present fresh and inventive methods for the teaching of creative writing Each chapter offers both a theoretical and a historical background for its respective pedagogical ideas as well as practical applications for use in the classroom This myriad of methods can be used either as a supplement to the customary workshop model or as stand alone roadmaps to engage and reinvigorate the creative process for both students and teachers alike A fresh and inspiring collection of teaching methods Creative Writing Pedagogies for the Twenty First Century combines both conventional and cutting edge techniques to expand the pedagogical possibilities in creative writing studies Beyond the Skills Gap Matthew T. Hora, 2019-01-02 2018 Frederic W Ness Book Award AAC U How can educators ensure that young people who attain a postsecondary credential are adequately prepared for the future Matthew T Hora and his colleagues explain that the answer is not simply that students need more specialized technical training to meet narrowly defined employment opportunities Beyond the Skills Gap challenges this conception of the skills gap highlighting instead the value of broader twenty first century skills in postsecondary education They advocate for a system in which employers share responsibility along with the education sector to serve the collective needs of the economy society and students Drawing on interviews with educators in two and four year institutions and employers in the manufacturing and biotechnology sectors the authors demonstrate the critical importance of habits of mind such as problem solving teamwork and communication They go on to show how faculty and program administrators can create active learning experiences that develop students skills across a range of domains The book includes in depth descriptions of eight educators whose classrooms exemplify the effort to blend technical learning with the cultivation of twenty first century habits of mind The study set in Wisconsin takes place against the backdrop of heated political debates over the role of public higher education This thoughtful and nuanced account enriched by keen observations of postsecondary instructional practice promises to contribute new insights to the rich literature on workforce development and to provide valuable guidance for postsecondary faculty and administrators Special Topics in Structural Dynamics, Volume 6 Randall Allemang, James De Clerck, Christopher Niezrecki, Alfred Wicks, 2025-08-07 Special Topics in Structural Dynamics Volume 6 Proceedings of the 31st IMAC A Conference and Exposition on Structural Dynamics 2013 the sixth volume of seven from the Conference brings together contributions to this important area of research and engineering The collection presents early findings and case studies on fundamental and applied aspects of Structural Dynamics including papers on Teaching Experimental Analytical Structural Dynamics Sensors Instrumentation Aircraft Aerospace Bio Dynamics Sports Equipment Dynamics Advanced ODS Stress Estimation Shock Vibration Full Field Optical Measurements Image Analysis Structural Health Monitoring Operational Modal Analysis Wind Turbine Dynamics Rotating Machinery Finite Element Methods Energy Harvesting On My Own Xueli Wang, 2021-02-18 2020 ASHE Council for the Advancement of Higher Education Programs CAHEP Barbara Townsend Lecture Award 2021 Transfer Champion Catalyst Award from the National Institute for the Study of Transfer Students NISTS 2021 Outstanding Publication Award AERA Division J Publication and Research On My Own The Challenge and Promise of Building Equitable STEM Transfer Pathways is the first book of its kind to provide a detailed on the ground examination of the difficult paths curricular interpersonal and institutional that students must chart through community college The book follows 1 670 two year college students over four years as they begin STEM programs in the Midwest and documents their educational and life experiences as they moved toward or away from the prospect of transfer to a four year institution Their stories reveal that they were on their own left to navigate the pathways to transfer without meaningful institutional support

The students pursued one of four pathways or momentum trajectories linear upward detoured deferred or taking a break The preexisting and lasting disparities in their access to education and financial resources their experiences with teaching and advising and the conundrum between support from and for family among others propelled them onto different trajectories in their quest for transfer As this book makes painfully clear the current state of transfer acts as a mechanism that perpetuates and worsens inequities in educational outcomes As Xueli Wang argues to cultivate an equitable STEM transfer pathway culturally relevant and responsive supports that are accessible welcoming and validating must be put in place at the institutional level and appeal to the talent motivation and unique needs of historically marginalized students In doing so postsecondary institutions will be better positioned to fulfill their promise as an equitable pathway to bachelor s degrees and beyond
