Year 9 History Exam:

Historical and Moral Consciousness in Education Niklas Ammert, Silvia Edling, Jan Löffström, Heather Sharp, 2022-03-10

Historical and Moral Consciousness highlights how ethics can be understood in the context of History education. It analyses the qualitative differences in how young people respond to historical and moral dilemmas of relevance to democratic values and human rights education. Drawing on a four year international project the book offers nuanced discussion and new scholarly understanding of the intersections between historical consciousness and moral consciousness within research. It develops new theoretical tools for history teaching and learning that can support teachers as they endeavor to educate for democratic citizenship. The book includes a meta analysis of research within history Didaktik and around historical events with a moral bearing and presents a comparative study of Australian Finnish and Swedish high school students moral understandings of historical dilemmas. Raising important questions about how our learning from the past is intertwined with our present and future interpretations and judgements this book will be of great interest to academics scholars teachers and post graduate students in the fields of history education democratic education human rights education and citizenship education.

Classroom Clangers John Golds, Vincent Shanley, 2013-03-31 Education is one aspect of life which we all share and consequently it provides a common interest. Memories of our own education and school life frequently impinge on our psyche especially if we have children undergoing the process. Too often these memories are sobering reminiscences punctuated by humorous recollections which prompt the wry smile and the oft quoted anecdote. While Education is a very serious subject it does have a lighter side which in these days of cutbacks inspections and media concentration helps relieve the tension. This book is a collection of mad imprints daft headlines and humorous anecdotes relation to the world of Education. More often than not it is the unintentional jokes which are the funniest and its compilation contains the most amusing and comical. Suspecting a hidden agenda behind Meredith's accusations he sets out to clear his name whatever the consequences and whatever price he has to pay to achieve it.

Constructing History 11-19 Hilary Cooper, Arthur Chapman, 2009-07-09 This book describes and exemplifies strategies for teaching history across the 11-19 age range in rigorous and enjoyable ways. It illustrates active learning approaches embedded in pupil led enquiries through detailed case studies which involve students in planning and carrying out historical enquiries creating accounts and presenting them to audiences in ways that develop increasingly sophisticated historical thinking. The case studies took place in a number of different localities and show how practising teachers worked with pupils during each year from Y6-7 to Y13 to initiate plan and implement enquiries and to present their findings in a variety of ways. Each case study is a practical example which teachers can use as a model and modify for their own contexts showing how independent learning linked to group collaboration and peer assessment can enhance learning. Social constructivist theories of learning applied to historical thinking underpin the book with particular emphasis on links between personalised and collaborative learning and e learning.

Critical Incidents in Teaching (Classic Edition) David Tripp, 2011-10-26 In this re-released classic edition of Critical Incidents in Teaching in print since 1993 and which includes a new introduction from the author David Tripp shows how teachers can draw on their own classroom experience to develop it

Teaching History in a Neoliberal Age Mary Woolley, 2019-09-04 This book explores changing practice in history classrooms from the autonomy of the 1980s through the introduction of GCSEs and the National Curriculum to the prescription of the National Strategies and the pervasive influence of league tables in the first decade of the twenty-first century. It uses individual narratives from history teachers to shed light on a changing profession. Showcasing research that is crucial reading for leaders in education, it uses oral accounts from 13 experienced teachers to provide a rich testimony of the constraints and affordances acting on history teachers. The book offers a unique perspective to show how teachers experienced steady but substantial changes in policy and autonomy and how this affected their practice. This detail enhances an analysis of policy and curricular documents across three decades. The findings are crucial for educational settings today facing crises of teacher recruitment and teacher retention. This book will be of great interest to academics and higher degree research students in history education, history of education and education policy. It will also be of interest to beginning history teachers and senior school leaders responsible for teacher development and curriculum.

History's Children Anna Clark, 2008 What is it about Australian history? Students dismiss the subject for being boring while politicians and concerned parents fret over their lack of historical knowledge. The classroom has become the battleground of the history wars, yet no one ever asks the children what they think about Australian history and what they like or don't about learning it. Through interviews with around 250 Australian students from a wide variety of schools, Anna

Clark asks how teachers and students teach and learn Australian history This book is a lively and often surprising read that throws all kinds of challenges to students teachers and indeed politicians
