2. Das "Great Game" - das langjährlige Wettrennen um Zentralasien - Der britische Lord Curzon, einer der besten britischen Diplomaten, hat es am besten ausgedrückt: „Das ist ein Wettrennen um die Kontrolle der Welt. Die Welt ist ein Schachbrett, und Zentralasien ist das Zentrum. Wer es gewinnt, gewinnt die Welt.“

The interviewee also refers to the fact, as such, outside of his education and skills, the possibility to perform his work without using the PDA's. The interviewee emphasizes that he feels very comfortable with his current situation.

The term's widespread use, then, suggests that since the late 1970s, the subject of race, specifically blackness (blackness as temporal race), has become a dominant, and possibly fixed, and perhaps even universal, subject that thinking about race has come to revolve around. But, I doubt, as might have appeared from the debates (and, of course, the epistemological and ideological disputes) that the debate around race has come to rest on a single, fixed (and, of course, universal) subject, blackness. In the light of all, in the context of race, it is not the blackness of black subjects that has become a fixed universal, but the blackness of the subject that has been produced as a blackness (and, of course, as a blackness that has been produced as a blackness). The blackness of the subject that has been produced as a blackness is not the blackness of the subject that has been produced as a blackness, but the blackness of the subject that has been produced as a blackness.

In the spheres of literature and popular culture Poe wields more global influence than any other U.S. author. This influence however cannot be attributed solely to the quality of Poe's texts or to his compellingly tragic biography. Rather his continued prominence as a writer owes much to the ways that Poe has been interpreted, portrayed and packaged by an extensive group of mediators ranging from anthologizers, editors, translators and fellow writers to literary critics, filmmakers, musicians and illustrators. In this volume the work of presenting Poe's texts for public consumption becomes a fascinating object of study in its own right, one that highlights the powerful and often overlooked influence of those who have edited, anthologized, translated and adapted the author's writing over the past 170 years. Book Notes Sidney Smith Rider, 1885 Consisting of literary gossip, criticisms of books and local historical matters connected with Rhode Island. The Instructor, 1940
