

The background of the book cover is a stylized illustration of a coastal landscape. In the foreground, a dirt path leads from the bottom left towards a small cluster of houses. The houses have dark roofs and white walls, with two chimneys visible. Behind the houses is a body of water, and in the distance, there are steep, brown cliffs. The sky is blue with large, white, fluffy clouds. The title text is overlaid on the sky and clouds.

Manhattan to West Cork Alice Carey, 2016-04-01 As a young girl Alice Carey came to realise that home can mean different things The only child of Irish immigrants to New York in search of a better life her isolated and sometimes violent childhood was transformed when her mother started working as maid to legendary Broadway producer Jean Dalrymple In Miss D's elegant Park Avenue town house Alice was exposed to a life she had only seen in films Her mother worked to save up enough money for them both to go home to Ireland travelling down below on ocean liners Ireland in the 1960s was radically different from New York in every way especially in its morality and attitudes to clerical abuse Yet despite the darkness many years later Alice and her husband fell in love with an abandoned Georgian farmhouse in west Cork As they restored its stables Alice began unearthing buried childhood memories played out in wildly divergent homes in New York City Fire Island and Killarney Manhattan to West Cork is the poignant tale of a young girl raised in a difficult environment juxtaposed with the story of a grown woman trying to make sense of her childhood A great read Alice started her first diary aged 10 this love of recording may explain her

Hinterland Felicity Hayes-McCoy, Wilf Judd, 2017-05-31 The tip of the Dingle Peninsula at the westernmost edge of Europe is one of Ireland's most isolated regions For millennia it has also been a hub for foreign visitors its position made it a medieval centre for traders and the wildness of its remote landscape has been the setting for spiritual pilgrimage This seeming paradox is what makes Dingle and its western hinterland unique the ancient native culture has been preserved while also being influenced by the world at large This rich heritage is best understood by chatting with the people who live and work here But how many visitors get that opportunity Starting with Dingle town Felicity Hayes McCoy takes us on an insiders tour of the region interviewing locals along the way ranging from farmers postmasters and boatmen to museum curators radio presenters and sean nos singers A resident for the last twenty years Felicity offers practical information and advice as well as cultural insights that will give any visitor a deeper understanding of this special place The Loneliest Boy in the World
