Looking in Classrooms Thomas L. Good, Alyson L. Lavigne, 2017-12-15 Looking in Classrooms uses educational, psychological, and social science theories and classroom-based research to teach future classroom teachers about the complexities and demands of classroom instruction. While maintaining the core approach of the first ten editions, the book has been thoroughly revised and updated with new research-based content on teacher evaluation, self-assessment, and decision-making, special emphases on teaching students from diverse ethnic, cultural, class, and gender identity contexts, and rich suggestions for integrating technology into classroom instruction. Widely considered to be the most comprehensive and authoritative source available on effective, successful teaching, Looking in Classrooms synthesizes the knowledge base on student motivation, classroom management, teacher expectations, teacher effectiveness, adaptive instruction for individual learners, and informative observational techniques for enhancing teaching. It addresses key topics in classroom instruction in an accessible fashion, promoting easy interpretation and transfer to practice and articulates the roles of teacher-centered pedagogy, student-centered instruction, and project-based learning in today's classroom. Guided by durable historical knowledge as well as dynamic, emerging conceptions of teaching, this text is ideal for undergraduate teacher training programs and for masters-level courses for teachers, administrators, and superintendents.

The Complete Home Learning Sourcebook Rebecca Rupp, 1998 Lists all the resources needed to create a balanced curriculum for homeschooling from preschool to high school level.

Homeschooling in the 21st Century Robert Maranto, Debra A. Bell, 2018-10-18 Education began on the most intimate levels: the family and the community. With industrialization, education became professionalized and bureaucratized, typically conducted in schools rather than homes. Over the past half century, however, schooling has increasingly returned home, both in the United States and across the globe. This reflects several trends, including greater affluence and smaller family size, leading parents to focus more on child well being declining faith in professionals including educators and the Internet whose resources facilitate home education In the United States students who are homeschooled for at least part of their childhood outnumber those in charter schools Yet remarkably little research addresses homeschooling This book brings together work from 20 researchers addressing a range of homeschooling topics including the evolving legal and institutional frameworks behind home education why some parents make this choice home education educational environments special education and outcomes regarding both academic achievement and political tolerance In short this book offers the most up to date research to guide policy makers and home educators a matter of great importance given the agenda of the current presidential administration The chapters in this book were originally published as articles in the Journal of School Choice
