In the Hunger Games novel, written by Suzanne Collins there many disturbing concerns. The main concerns expressed in this novel are Humanity and inhumanity, Corporal Punishment, Restriction in food, Survival and risk and Schadenfreude. These terms demonstrate the citizens of Panem who they are and what they do.

Humanity and inhumanity are expressed when Katniss has to do humane things help an opponent or inhumane things kill someone. This displays that she is more emotional about the troubles about the Avox girl than killing anyone in the arena. This reason is why Humanity and Inhumanity display a main concern expressed in the novel the Hunger Games.

Corporal punishment one of the main issues expressed in the Hunger Games. For Example in district 11 stealing any of the crops would get you whipped in front of your whole district. This happens to warn any district that if you don't obey the laws you will punish. Such as Katniss's Dad could make a decent amount of money from selling bows.

Restriction off food one of the main reasons that is killing district 12's population. The capitol has a restriction on food to keep the poor districts weak so they don't need to worry about an uprising. The capitol restricts certain raw materials coming into the any of the districts so that they can't make weapons out of it.

Survival and risk is the definition of Katniss Everdeen. She shows incredible survival skills winning the Hunger coming from one of the poorest districts. She shows risk when entering and poaching food in the forest to feed her family, which is punishable by death. Katniss Everdeen makes decisions if the risk is a potential gain.
